Fourth Child On Way?

LONDON (UPI) — Reports circulated today that Queen Elizabeth is expecting her fourth child.

There was no comment on the reports from Buckingham Palace itself.

If tradition is followed, the announcement of an expected birth would be made about five or six months before the anticipated birth date.

The announcement that Elizabeth was expecting her last child was made in August, 1959, and Prince Andrew was born in February, 1960. He will be two years old Feb. 19.

The Queen's other children are Prince Charles, the heir apparent who is 13, and Princess Anne, who is 11. Both Elizabeth, 35, and Philip have been reported in the past to favor another child.

Gaglardi Defends McMahon Profits

Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi Monday defended oil magnate Frank McMahon in the legislature and said anyone who took the gambles he took on pipelines deserved "some reasonable amount of return."

Lawyer Alex Macdonald (NDP-CCF-Vancouver East) last week attacked the businessman, charging he made $11,250,000 for nothing by getting a government franchise to build a crude oil pipeline.

Mr. Gaglardi said it would be equally fair to accuse a lawyer of profiting at taxpayers' expense.

He said it cost about $25,000 to educate a lawyer, plus about $3,000 the law student paid himself.

"According to statistics lawyers make approximately from $10,000 to $100,000 a year," said Mr. Gaglardi.

"Here's a man that's prof-

'STRIPTease' BACON WRAP UNDER FIRE

MONTREAL (CP) — The Consumers' Association of Canada has declared war on the "striptease" package of bacon.

It has appealed to the food and drug directorate for some regulation to ban the window-frame bacon package which conceals all but the lean edges of bacon.

"This good enough for the long reign that seems likely to stretch before her: The candid answer must be no."

The Guardian says that much more significant than the Queen's remaining political rights is her power to influence social attitudes.

"The Queen has neglected this aspect of 20th century monarchy... at a time when qualities of innovation, originality and daring are needed to revitalize our society, the Royal Family ought to think of themselves as pacesetters."

MARGARET 'AT SEA' ON ISLAND

Is B.C. Afraid to Ask?

LONDON (CP) — Officials appeared baffled today at reports from British Columbia that the provincial government is awaiting permission from Princess Margaret before developing a marine park on an island given to her in 1958.

Although a spokesman for the princess and officials at British Columbia House declined detailed comment, they gave the impression that they believe Princess Margaret was unaware that any further action was necessary on her part. The 545-acre Portland Island was presented to the princess when she visited Victoria and renamed Princess Margaret Island. At the time, officials here said, the princess expressed the hope the island would be developed for the public.

It was understood that Margaret had no intention of developing work on the project but that she probably would make no move until she receives some official communication from the B.C. government outlining exactly what it wants to do with the property.

The spokesman said that, as far as he knew, the princess has received no request from the provincial government.

"The island is not used for anything at present," he said. "I know of no plans for it at the moment."

Officials at B.C. House said they were not directly involved in the matter.

Recreation Minister Earle Westwood said today he could not make any comment about the fate of Princess Margaret (nee Portland) Island.

However, he denied a London report that he had asked for the return of the island.

It was also learned that there are no specific parks branch plans for development of a provincial marina on Princess Margaret Island.

ALGERIA

Paper Pirated By Rebels

ORAN, Algeria (AP) — The European secret army answered President de Gaulle's promise of an Algerian peace agreement with the daring seizure today of an Oran newspaper.

The secret army commandos blanketed the city with a pirate edition asserting the French settlers will win their battle to block Algerian independence.

The latest daring coup by former General Raoul Salan's Secret Army Organization occurred at 2 a.m., only a few hours after the right-wing settlers' underground had forced President de Gaulle off the television screens of Algeria's second largest city by kidnapping seven radio technicians and making a pirate broadcast as the president spoke.

The printers of the Echo d'Oran were about to start the night's run when a group of about 20 armed men, their faces covered with scarves, hurried into the building.

Herding aside workers in the composing room, the raiders quickly recast the paper's back page, which is usually devoted to North African news. They inserted type and a big picture of Salan which they had brought with them.

Under the guns of the raiders, about 20,000 copies of the new edition were run off.

Beginning at 7 a.m., runners went through the streets of the city, handing out the papers to early workers who eagerly snatched them.

It was probably the most daring propaganda coup Salan has yet pulled.

RE-ELECTED

Finnish general election which ended Monday returned President Urho Kekkonen to power at the head of the Agrarian Party which replaced the Communists as the country's largest party. Prospects are that Kekkonen will form a coalition government, excluding reds, with a working majority in the 200-seat Finnish house. (See story page 5.)

Dutch Ready To Discuss New Guinea

THE HAGUE (Reuters) — A Dutch foreign office spokesman said here today that a meeting between Dutch and Indonesian diplomats in Cologne, West Germany, on the West New Guinea question was "not excluded."

The spokesman was commenting on reports that Adam Malik, the Indonesian ambassador in Moscow, has arrived in Cologne and is prepared to meet a Dutch representative for talks on Dutch-held West New Guinea, which Indonesia claims as West Irian.

The Dutch spokesman said The Netherlands is "not seeking bilateral talks with Indonesia on our own initiative but we would be willing to treat with sympathy any Indonesian approach."

Decision Wanted By Voters

Mayor R. B. Wilson today challenged Greater Victoria municipal councils to let their ratepayers vote on whether or not there should be a formal amalgamation study.

Early indications were that Victoria and Saanich councils may take up the challenge while Oak Bay and Esquimalt may not.

The mayor suggested the vote on the heels of a 4 to 3 Saanich council decision lining itself up with Oak Bay and Esquimalt in refusing to participate in a formal study.

Reeve Stanley Murphy said that a referendum to settle the issue of whether or not there should be a formal study, "certainly should be considered" by his council.

NO FORMAL STUDY

But Oak Bay Reeve George Murdoch said his council and Esquimalt already have taken the stand there should be no formal study. He pointed out the two councils were willing to hold a vote after an informal study by intermunicipal committee.

Meanwhile, Saanich Council Hugh Curtis said the December election results showed that the council refusal did not reflect the wishes of Saanich ratepayers.

Several ratepayers agreed with holding a referendum after Mayor Wilson's challenge to all councils to put their private views to a test at the ballot box to see what the people want.

HONEST DOUBTS

He said so many persons living in the outside municipalities had contacted him to support his proposal of a study that he had some honest doubts the positions taken by councils really reflected the feelings of their ratepayers.

"If the decision of Saanich council is the wish of the people, I recognize and accept as fact that the time is not yet ripe for amalgamation," he said.

"However, I've had so many people from the outside municipalities tell me of their desires that a study be made, that I seriously wonder whether the councils of the adjoining municipalities are actually voicing the wishes of their ratepayers."

ASK VOTERS

"The only way to find out would be for each municipality to ask its voters whether they wanted to have a study or not," he said.

Although Mayor Wilson did not indicate what his next step would be, he may formally suggest to intermunicipal committee that the four municipalities hold referendums on launching a study to clear the air and for all.

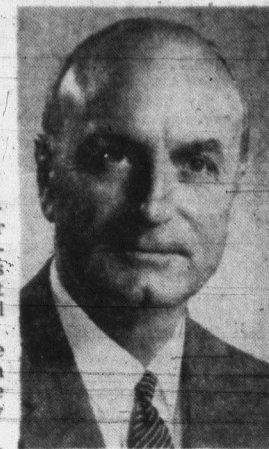

Reeve Murdoch said all questions could be studied informally at intermunicipal level. He said a government-sponsored formal study would inevitably lead to the municipalities "being pushed into a disastrous position."

He said this had always occurred in previous government studies on municipal mergers.

Coun. Curtis who led the polls, said a majority of his colleagues were ignoring the wishes of Saanich people.

Election Call Soon?

(Times Ottawa Bureau) OTTAWA — Canadians may go to the polls in a general election in late April or early May.

Parliament appears to be teetering on the brink of dissolution; it may come to an end within the next two weeks.

Decision of the federal government to make the $10 increase in universal old-age pensions effective this month, with the first $65 cheques to go out in the mail by the end of the month, has added impetus to election conjecture here. (See story page 20.)

Members on both sides of the House are now convinced that the days of the 24th Parliament are numbered by days rather than weeks. The present session is only 18 days old. It could be ended abruptly within the next two weeks.

However should the present session survive the next two or three weeks, then the odds are that it will continue sitting for another two months until the Easter recess with Prime Minister Diefenbaker announcing dissolution during that recess.

Deny Attempt To Kill Nikita

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet foreign office press spokesman today branded as a "provocative rumor without any foundation at all" a story current in Moscow that an attempt had been made to assassinate Premier Khrushchev.

"It is an invention and completely false," the spokesman added.

The rumors had been investigated by correspondents and diplomats for the last several days and no one could find any substance to them.

Merger Out

LONDON (AP) — Colonial Secretary Reginald Maudling told the House of Commons tonight that Britain has decided to break up the evolving West Indies Federation.

Maudling's announcement resulted from his visit to the Caribbean last month. He had talks with the West Indies federal government, the premiers of Barbados, Trinidad and the chief ministers of the Leeward and Windward Islands.

Jamaica has declared its determination to withdraw from the federation.

Made In Japan 'Indian' Craft Hurts Natives

OTTAWA (CP)—Imitation Indian handicrafts from Japan are causing hardship on British Columbia reservations, says a letter to Citizenship Minister Fairclough tabled in the Commons Monday.

The author is Mrs. Peter Grey who describes herself as one of 21 women in the 13-family village of Fort Fraser who depends on her needle to eke out a living for herself and family. Fort Nelson is in the Cariboo country of interior B.C.

The Japanese imports are "not as nice... but the fact is always pointed out that they are cheaper," said the letter. There was only a small profit as it was but "every bit helps in poverty."

SOURCE CUT OFF

It added: "You white people accuse us of being shiftless and yet you allow our only source of finance to be cut off. We know a great deal of our beads come from Japan and I would not be at all surprised if you raise the duties on them, which will be another hindrance to the native Indian."

"The beads we buy are high enough in price right now."

Mrs. Fairclough's reply expressed sympathy and said the matter is under continuing study and that Mrs. Grey's letter has been sent to Finance Minister Fleming, whose department probably would also reply.

The correspondence was tabled at the request of Frank Howard (CCF—Skeena).

Let Premiers Meet on Grid—Bennett

Premier Bennett has written to Prime Minister Diefenbaker suggesting a meeting of provincial premiers be called to discuss a possible national power transmission system.

Mr. Bennett told reporters he sent the letter to the prime minister Monday in reply to a letter from Mr. Diefenbaker last week in which Mr. Diefenbaker had suggested a meeting of power experts from all provinces.

Mr. Bennett said his letter suggests that the prime minister call a meeting of provincial premiers to settle policy first, then have the experts meet.

Mr. Bennett said British Columbia is extremely interested in the possibilities of a national grid because "we're an energy surplus area."

A-Arms for NATO Probed This Week

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Kennedy administration is expected to come under new pressure this week to speed up plans for giving the North Atlantic alliance an independent nuclear force.

Nuclear armament is to be a major issue, U.S. officials said Sunday, in meetings which NATO Secretary-General Dirk Stikker will hold here with U.S. policy-makers beginning today.

Liberal MLA Harry McKay had Premier Bennett on his feet crying "smear, smear" in the legislature Monday when he made a fierce attack on political patronage appointments.

The Fernie Liberal said appointment of former agriculture minister Newton P. Steacy and former labor minister Lyle Wicks to government posts had caused "revulsion."

Neither deserved nor should have taken the jobs, he said.

"Arrogance has shown itself in many ways, and nothing clearer than the pork barrel appointments of last April," said Mr. McKay.

'It's Still Wrong'

When government members tried to shout him down with cries that the Liberals had made similar appointments when they were the government, Mr. McKay replied:

"It was wrong before, Mr. Premier, it is just as wrong today."

He added: "Patronage appointments of this type are a slap in the face to men who have worked many years in the professional service trying to attain positions of this type."

"Was Mr. Steacy the man best qualified to hold the position in San Francisco? Surely no one is going to suggest that this is the case."

"Yes," called the premier.

"Has Mr. Wicks the necessary ability either in accounting or engineering or the like to make a valuable contribution to the PUC?"

"Yes," the premier again.

'Political Pension'

Mr. McKay was undaunted: "I say that the very fact these men accepted the jobs is an indication of their unworthiness to hold the jobs. Any man of pride wouldn't have accepted such a blatant political pension."

"It is actions such as these that are causing revulsion across the country—and it's a revulsion that's going to drive these people out of office."

Earlier Mr. McKay had aroused the premier's ire by

Reds Concentrate On U.S., Cuba Row

By TOM HOGGE

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Cuba and the Soviet bloc appeared determined to magnify Cuban aggression charges against the United States into a major propaganda show in the United Nations designed to embarrass President Kennedy's administration.

The Communist strategy became clear when debate opened Monday in the General Assembly's 104-country main political committee. Cuba, the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia delivered marathon speeches denouncing the U.S. government as the mastermind behind last April's abortive invasion of Cuba and accusing Washington of plotting new aggression against Fidel Castro's regime.

Observers predicted the debate would develop into a week-long display of Communist oratory with the rest of the UN members sitting on the sidelines.

Soviet delegate Valerian Zorin attempted to manoeuvre the United States into the position of being on trial before the Assembly with himself as chief prosecutor. Zorin posed a series of questions directly to U.S. chief delegate Adlai Stevenson dealing mainly with the U.S. part in the invasion. Zorin also demanded to know if Cuban exiles are being financed and trained on U.S. soil and at points in Latin America for another invasion thrust.

Stevenson replied that Zorin had merely dredged up a series of "lurid charges, all identical" to those delivered by Cuban

NEW COLUMBIA PACT IF DEADLOCK REMAINS?

SEATTLE (AP)—The chairman of the United States section of the International Joint Commission said Monday the U.S. may seek a new Columbia River treaty with Canada if the present one is not soon ratified by Canada.

Tony Roncallo, speaking here to the Columbia Interstate Compact Commission, said the present international deadlock may force the U.S. to seek a new pact, limited to Montana's Libby Dam.

The present treaty was described by Mr. Roncallo as "fair and just."

Mr. Roncallo told the Columbia group that his country would "go it alone" if agreement on the stalled treaty is not reached in a few months.

Nearing a Showdown

THE SEVEN-YEAR TRAGEDY of Algeria appears to be reaching a climax which could bring peace, or an even worse blood-drenched chaos. President de Gaulle scoffs at the likelihood of the latter and says that events are moving rapidly toward a settlement.

Negotiations between President de Gaulle and the Moslem rebels, known as the FLN, have reached a point where agreement is possible. France has made concessions—one being removal of its insistence on treating the oil-rich Sahara as a problem separate from the Algerian dispute—while the FLN concedes that France may retain certain military strength in Algeria, such as naval bases and some army posts. Also guaranteed, in the event of Algerian independence, would be use of the French language and the rights of the non-Moslem minority.

It is the latter problem, however, that threatens a successful outcome to the present negotiations. For the Moslems seek to discourage many of the French-born Algerians from staying on, while de Gaulle holds that every resident of Algeria today should become a full citizen of the country after independence.

These questions, however, are on the negotiation level. Of much greater danger to future peace is the third factor in the Algerian situation—the OAS, or rebel French element which has set up a virtual control of Algerian centres and driven French governmental authorities almost into hiding.

The Secret Army Organization, led by French General Salan, enjoys the support—either through fervor or intimidation—of almost the entire non-Moslem population of Algeria. These people are not predominantly French, as is usually supposed, but a mixture of French, Spanish, Italian, Greek and other Mediterranean races, and many of them were born in Algeria.

They fear that in an independent Algeria their rights will be overridden by the large Moslem majority. They therefore fight savagely to prevent the settlement to which de Gaulle is committed, and their terrorism has spread to France itself.

Agreement between the FLN and Paris on independence, therefore, could bring a civil war that would spread far beyond even the present extensive OAS bombing and assassination attacks, and conceivably involve France in a bloody uprising.

The French army in Algeria remains loyal to de Gaulle, but it has rebelled in the past and its future support is not certain. The people of France in general favor the de Gaulle settlement and are anxious to end the long haemorrhage of blood and money which has drained France to the danger point.

The next few days may provide an answer to the vital questions: peace or war, compromise or revolution?

It was the seriousness of the Algerian problem that brought General de Gaulle out of his village retirement to lead his nation away from the brink of disaster. France is still on the brink, and the solution which de Gaulle proposes—while seeming logical and just to most outside observers—may precipitate the very catastrophe which he seeks to avoid.

A breakdown of authority in France—and it is not discounted by most observers—would provide an opportunity for Communism which it would be quick to seize.

It is not only France, therefore, which faces a deadly brink. For a Communist-controlled France would present a danger to Europe, the West and the world which might lead inevitably to war.

Life Insurance Comes High

TO THE MAN IN THE STREET the $92.5 billions which President Kennedy seeks from Congress for the United States' next budget may be a figure understandable to astronomers, mathematicians and experts in public finance.

By the time other expenses have been tacked on to it—old-age insurance, unemployment compensation, etc.—and state and local taxes have been added, the total governmental bill for running the country may reach $165 billion. That, also, is a figure for specialists.

The New York Times reduces the amount to understandable proportions when it says: "Our efforts to keep our own world from being blown up and to explore other worlds we hope will prove more peaceful are going to cost nearly two-thirds of every federal budget dollar."

About 66 cents will go for defence and space, another 10 cents for interest on debts incurred in fighting wars and the depression. That leaves about 25 cents in the dollar to be spent for a better-educated, better-housed country and for strengthening the economy in a period of rapid technical change.

A little wistfully older Americans must look back on the days when more than two-bits in the dollar was spent by government to give them a fuller life; before three-quarters of the dollar was required for national, perhaps international, life insurance.

The Deer on Horseback

MR. CYRIL SHELFORD USED a humorous approach but there was nothing funny about the proposal he made to the legislature the other day to deal with hunting accidents.

The member for Omineca had good reason to raise the issue. He reported that he had three shots directed his way by a hunter last year. Five shots had been fired at a friend. Both were riding horses at the time.

In his big game country, one hunter had "bagged" his third horse last season and others had killed cows, Mr. Shelford says.

He believes that stricter penalties should be applied to hunters who show irresponsibility. In the case of hunting fatalities he thinks an automatic charge of manslaughter should be laid—and modified if circumstances justified modification. He suggests that a hunter who wounded another in the woods should have his hunting licence suspended for no less than 10 years and up to life.

It is frequently argued—in other discussions of unlawful acts—that harsh penalties are ineffective deterrents. That argument does not apply in hunting accidents. No hunter goes out to shoot at or kill another man, unless his intent is murder. But if any hunter reacts in such a way that he does shoot a man, then he has no business hunting at all. Society is better off with him banned from the woods.

Mr. Shelford, himself the target for a hunter who didn't shoot very well, talks from experience.

Walls on This Side, Too

NEWSPAPER READERS HAVE been informed that members of a Communist East German hockey team will be banned from entering the United States for the World Hockey Championships at Colorado Springs in March. This is explained, is the result of regulations adopted after the erection of the wall splitting East and West Berlin.

There may be excellent reasons for the regulations, but what kind of impression does the exclusion create?

No one credits East German hockey players with much of a chance in major international competition. Excluded from the event, however, they provide an excellent peg on which to hang Communist propaganda in this "wonderful world of sport."

Sometimes it appears that figures in sport demonstrate greater perceptiveness than the makers of state policy. It isn't so long ago that John Thomas, the great American high jumper, took his jumps from V. Brumel, the Soviet athlete. On that occasion Thomas said he had never jumped better but was outjumped by a man who could go higher—no alibis, no bitterness, just good sportsmanship.

That, also, made good propaganda this time for the United States. But if a country tries hard enough, such valuable propaganda can be offset.

"Made It"

FROM TOKYO

Japan's New Luxury Products Are Booming

KNOWN chiefly before the Second World War as a low-cost producer of cheap goods, Japan today is making inroads into world markets with luxury and semi-luxury products made by workers whose pay is approaching European standards.

Japanese transistor radios and portable television sets are now being promoted by the leading stores of North America and Europe; Japanese passenger cars are selling in growing numbers from San Francisco to Johannesburg; Japanese watches and clocks are providing stiff competition to the Swiss watch industry and Japanese cameras have scored an instant success in the home market of their main competitor—West Germany.

Although the Japanese government has raised the official interest rate and adopted other retrenchment measures to cut back the runaway expansion which has characterized the nation's economy for the past two years, companies making luxury consumer products are booming as never before.

The camera industry, for example, broke all production records during 1961. Overall output for the year is estimated at 2.4 million units—an increase of 30 per cent over 1960 production. Exports for the year are put at 850,000 units—an increase of 20 per cent over the 1960 level.

Sudden Recovery

The main reason for the sudden recovery of an industry which two years ago seemed to be facing stagnation, is believed to be the introduction of a new generation of "electric eye" (EEI) cameras which literally "think" for the person using them.

The most successful of these has been the Canonet, which will not take a picture unless it will turn out perfectly. Orders for the Canonet have been so heavy that a special plant has had to be built to handle production, and planes have had to be chartered to airlift the cameras to Europe.

Another factor in the recovery of the camera industry has been its skill in foreseeing changing public tastes.

During the past five years, the once-popular twin-lens reflex camera has virtually dropped from sight. The proportion of overall production accounted for by the 35 mm camera has risen from 44 per cent to 82 per cent in five years, while that of the twin-lens reflex has dropped from 37 per cent to a mere seven per cent.

Even more spectacular progress has been made by the watch and clock industry. During 1961, Japan turned out 8,500,000 clocks and 9 million watches, making it the fifth largest producer of timepieces in general and third largest watch maker in the world. These represented increases of about 30 per cent each over the previous year's figure.

Once the object of derision, the Japanese watch today is undergoing much the kind of transformation which made Japanese cameras internationally famous. Major watch producers have built new, air-conditioned factories and filled them with modern Swiss machinery.

Similar Progress

The automobile industry is recording similar progress. Overall production for 1961 is expected to exceed the one million mark for the first time in history. For the past three years, automobile production has been increasing by 70 per cent annually, and despite credit squeezes and tough competition in export markets, the rate of increase is still rising.

The boom in consumer goods, apart from the effect of the export market, has been spurred primarily by the remarkable change which has occurred in the Japanese way of life since the war.

In pre-war days, the Japanese consumer market hardly existed. Most families possessed little more than a few sticks of furniture, personal accessories, a cheap radio receiver and perhaps a bicycle.

Today, about 30 per cent of all Japanese households have television receivers and washing machines and the proportion of houses owning refrigerators, electric blenders and other appliances is rapidly rising. Refrigerator output in 1961 is estimated at two million units—an increase of about 80 per cent over the 1960 figure.

Even the traditional Japanese textile industry—which before the war was the mainstay of the country's industrial progress—is feeling the effects of the new trend. Japan has virtually abandoned production of the cheaper grades of cotton goods because of intense competition from newer textile exporters such as India and Formosa.

Increasing Exports

The exports of such textiles as nylon, tetoron (known as terylene in Britain) and acrylic fibres, on the other hand, are increasing rapidly. In 1961, it is estimated that exports of leading synthetic textiles were worth about $55 million—an increase of 70 per cent over the previous year.

To keep pace with the trend towards luxury consumer goods, Japanese industry is actively engaged in developing new products. Some of these have only just begun to appear on export markets.

They include stereophonic gramophones, transistor sets (walkie-talkie radio-telephones with a range of about three miles), color television sets, light motorcycles and electronic refrigerators (which work on the thermocouple principle and have no moving parts).

Nearly all these new luxury products have the stable base of a large domestic market. Wage levels are now about equal to those of Italy and the government of Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda has promised that by 1970 they will be double what they are now.

Of course, Japan is also discovering what Britain found out after the war—that when too high a proportion of production goes to the domestic market, a large trade deficit develops. Japan expects its international balance of payments to be about $200 million in the red for fiscal 1961 (which ends in March, 1962).

That is why other prosperous countries can expect renewed Japanese trade promotion efforts during 1962. (London Observer Service)

A PAMPHLET just in from Santa Barbara, California, suggests that even if we survive the outlook is bleak. It is a study written in the lush land of the Santa Ynez Mountains just behind Santa Barbara. Here a group of hand-picked philosophers sit in an exquisite Palladian mansion among gardens overlooking a plunging canyon and the calm Pacific.

In this unlikely setting, Dr. Robert Hutchins, the former rebel president of the University of Chicago, presides over his recluses, who celebrate on such burning issues as "Is there a public consensus?" and "Political problems in the redistricting of Philadelphia in the 1970s."

The latest bulletin has hit the metropolitan headlines like an unpublished essay of Aristotle's on "The Strategy of the Slowdown." Called "Cybernation: the Silent Conquest," it predicts, in a prose of appalling urbanity, that in the next 20 years the robot in his familiar form of the computer will likely become the master of man.

"The word 'cybernation' is a tolerable compound of 'cybernetics' (the science of communication between men and machines) and automation. Its corner is the author of the pamphlet, Donald Michael, a Harvard graduate and sometimes adviser to the Pentagon, to UNESCO, and to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

His thesis is that in the next two decades Western society, the United States especially, is going to suffer from something that can be called either 'massive unemployment' or a plague of leisure. He sees four main types of victim, or enforced lotus-eater.

1. The unskilled and semi-skilled worker (shop assistant, bank teller, postal clerk, bus driver, etc.) displaced by machines which are about to do his work better than he can, will be left to mooch around the house (if he can still afford one) or to join "radical organizations" which could "vent hostility" or at least give him the feeling that he was up and doing.

2. Low-income groups (what were once called the lower middle class) who will be lucky to work four eight-hour days, perhaps only five four-hour days. These people will be thrown on their families by day and consequently aggravate "the already inadequate, ambiguous and frustrating relationships that typify much of middle-class family life."

3. The semi-skilled or "part professional" victim of cybernation will be in much the same case as Class 2, but he will cause less social friction than almost anybody. Because of his "values and education (he) is likely to enjoy and make the best possible use of his newly found leisure."

4. The professional and managerial class, the cream of our civilization. The more tedious aspects of their work (calculating the square root of zero, figuring out expense accounts) will be absorbed by cybernation. But it is their calamity that they are smarter than the smartest machines and will have to go on drafting the cigarette advertisements, deciding what to do about Berlin, inventing religions. "They," says the Michael Report, "will have very little leisure."

The ingenious suggestion that we should all start training as repair men is forestalled by Mr. Michael's grim warning that computers are fast learning to mend themselves and handle their own nervous breakdowns. The prospect ahead is of vast populations which sometimes sit and think and sometimes just sit.

Rush Hour

By PETER JENKINS
from London

JAN. 29 was the worst day for London traffic since the invention of the motor-car. The combined efforts of a few hundred striking train drivers and thousands upon thousands of car drivers trying to get to work reduced the flow of traffic to a walking pace through much of the city and at moments brought the city almost to a halt.

The Londoner's deeply rooted "blitz mentality" was well evident. Waking up with his back to the wall, he set out with a stiff upper lip to walk or drive to his office without bothering in many cases to find out whether his train was running.

The result was that the 50 per cent service on the south-eastern commuter lines and the spasmodic services on most of the major underground lines were not fully used. Even the mainline services, which were not directly affected by the strike, lost passengers to the roads. And at East Croydon Station passengers complained about finding a normal service, having risen early in the expectation of disaster.

The motorists came in like the invading hordes of Genghis Khan to ravage the heart of the city. By mid-morning the main thoroughfares of central London were paved with steel and still the cars were coming—from north, south, east, and west, though mainly from the south. The Thames could have used three times as many bridges.

By mid-morning every parking cranny had gone. "London is full" said Scotland Yard hopefully, but still the cars came in and where they parked remains a mystery.

The motoring organizations looked on with scarcely concealed glee. "Not for the first time," said the Automobile Association, "the business life of London has been saved from total disruption largely by the private motor-car. Cars came to the rescue during the Hitler war and have done so again at times of emergency ever since."

According to the Royal Automobile Club "more than 90 per cent of the private cars on the road were carrying passengers and many had full loads," though according to other reports it was not at all easy to get lifts. Owner-occupied cars with seats to spare were seen passing the bus queues in the city by their hundreds in the evening rush hour.

In the evening it was worse, because London never got over the morning. By 4 p.m. the buses were running normally again after the two-hour delays of the morning, by about 6.30 they were two hours behind schedule again. Average speeds got down to less than one mile an hour. Some motorists arrived in London in time to leave again, or so the AA said. The rush hours had merged.

Still Portuguese Citizens

This Consulate has received many letters from Goanese who are now residents of British Columbia asking if, after India's annexation by force of the Portuguese province of Goa, they can still retain their Portuguese citizenship.

Since similar inquiries have been received by the Portuguese Consulates in many countries from thousands of Goanese settled abroad who do not want to become Indian citizens, the Portuguese government has instructed all its diplomatic missions to inform these Portuguese that their citizenship has not been affected. They are, therefore, perfectly free to use and travel with their Portuguese passports and, of course, they are welcome, at any time, in any part of the Portuguese territory as the nationals of our country that they are.

British Justice

After reading the article in the Victoria Times headed "Tracking Dog Evidence Gets Court's Study," I felt like saying "Thank God for British justice and the Canadian perpetuation of it."

Here we have three high judges of our court expressing the deepest concern that a man of whom no one has ever heard should not be victimized by being tried again after he has been acquitted.

Only in a country where British law prevails could this happen. In France "a man is guilty until proved innocent" and this, I am sorry to say, is true of some trials in the United States. Here, in Canada, we breathe a fine legal air, and that atmosphere of fairness to all concerned is sustained by our judges, as is evidenced by your article.

Strayed, Not Stolen

In your paper of Friday, Feb. 2, appeared an item under "Topics of the Day" about a woman having her fur coat stolen.

The lady, Mrs. E. Stilborn, reported to the police on Friday, Feb. 2, that her fur coat was missing from the cloakroom at a League of Roses concert the night before. I would like to correct this item. On the night of Thursday, February 1, the lady informed me that her coat was missing and I told her we would do our best to find where her coat had gone. I made several phone calls when I got home and I am very pleased to say that coat was returned to Mrs. Stilborn by noon Friday, February 2, and she notified the police the coat had been found by 10 o'clock that morning.

The coat had been taken by another member by mistake and another fur coat was left at the hall. I am writing because this item could give the League of Roses a black eye as I have received lots of phone calls asking what kind of a club are we to allow things like this to happen.

REPORTING

OTTAWA — While we're waiting with something less than bated breath for Mr. D. to tell us how he's going to reform the Senate, let's see what he may be up to. And against.

We can, I think, disregard as facetious the comment of one senator that the "measure relating to the Senate" forecast in the Throne Speech will increase the senators' salaries.

Most likely it will set 75 years as the compulsory retirement age for senators, as with judges of the higher courts.

Why? Because if every senator 75 or over were turfed out, Prime Minister Diefenbaker could fill all the vacancies with Conservatives and immediately have a majority of eight in the 102-seat Upper House. The way it is now, he'll have to wait at least six years for enough Grit senators to die. While the PM can increase present Conservative representation from 25 to 31 by filling existing vacancies, that's a long way from a majority when there are 68 Liberal senators, two Independents and an Independent Liberal, and the attrition rate in the Red Chamber is only 4½ senators a year, not necessarily all Grits.

The 28 "over-age" senators might well decide they didn't want to be forcibly ejected from their life appointments at $10,000 a year. With support from 26 younger colleagues who would be gullitinated within five years they could defeat a bill to amend the constitution in this particular. Mind you, it might take a few ambulances and wheel chairs to get them all into the chamber for the crucial vote, but they could do it.

The prime minister would then have an election issue — Senate obstructionism — for what it would be worth. But unless the Liberals voted solidly against the age limit it wouldn't likely be worth much.

A better bet is that the Senate would amend the bill to make it apply only to senators appointed henceforth, and not to those who are now members of the Upper House. This wouldn't do anything to further the PM's hopes of securing a majority in the Senate.

If the government proved obdurate, the senators might even propose that the 75-year retirement age apply equally to the House of Commons. Or — heavens forbid! — they could reason that inasmuch as the Commons is the junior chamber, its members should retire at 70. This would mean that Diefenbaker, now 66, wouldn't be able to be prime minister from his Commons seat in the centennial year, 1967, thus denying him his dearest wish. To remain PM, he'd have to appoint himself to the Senate!

While the Senate has a veto on its own reform, the veto is not utter and absolute. The Senate can block a bill to amend the constitution relevant to the Senate. It could block a joint address to the Queen — formerly the method of obtaining a constitutional amendment — which prays that she cause to be laid before her Parliament at Westminster a measure to amend the British North America Act in whatever respect our Parliament desires.

But it could not prevent the British Parliament from amending the BNA Act, if it so chose, to give effect to a resolution passed by an overwhelming majority of the Canadian House of Commons. But would Diefenbaker go that far in hand to Westminster in a squabble with the Senate? He might look ridiculous, and that's dynamite to politicians.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

Milk Bath for Pierre?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — As everyone must by now be aware, the government is seriously concerned over the sharp drop in milk consumption in recent months.

President Kennedy called attention to the situation last week by directing that milk be served at all meals at the White House. He said most Americans needed milk's nutrition.

Then his press secretary, Pierre Salinger, gave the campaign another boost by serving milk to some journalists at a White House news briefing.

Unfortunately, however, no one as yet has more than a vague idea as to what caused the milk slump. Until the reasons for it have been ascertained, I doubt there will be much improvement.

One theory is that many people stopped drinking milk because they had heard it might contain radioactive fallout. In my opinion, this theory won't hold water.

I believe a more valid theory might be that milk consumption has declined because it is too wholesome. Sales possibly would be stimulated if people were led to feel that milk drinking is wicked.

Maybe it would help if they bottled milk in fifths instead of quarts.

Apart from that, it seems to me that Hollywood is at least partly responsible for the drop in milk consumption.

It has been quite a while since any movie studio has turned out a sweeping historical drama which featured a sloop-eyed temptress taking a milk bath.

I can remember a time when any director who failed to include at least one milk bath scene in an epic of that sort would have been drummed out of the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences.

Considering retakes and all of that, Hollywood in the old days probably kept a couple of dairy herds operating full time.

There's no telling how many gallons were consumed by stage-struck young girls who saw the pictures and became convinced there was something glamorous about lacteal immersion.

I suggest, therefore, that Salinger seek to revive this fad at his next news briefing by dunking himself in a tub of milk — making certain, of course, that he first removes his cigar.

Finland's Reds Sustain Losses

HELSINKI (Reuters) — President Urho Kekkonen's Agrarian party today displaced the Communists as the largest party in the Finnish parliament.

Unofficial returns from the two-day election which ended Monday showed a swing to the right that increased Agrarian representation to 34 from 47 seats while the Communists were reduced to 47 and 50.

The Agrarian party, which up to now has ruled as a one-party minority government with parliamentary support, was given a good chance of forming a coalition government with a working majority in the 200-seat house.

But prospects were dim for a coalition between the Agrarians and the Social Democrats, the third largest party.

Such a coalition, essential to Finnish political stability, appeared to be ruled out by the re-election of anti-Communist Social Democrats who might compromise Finland's delicate relations with Russia.

But the Communist losses were seen as an assurance that the government would continue without Communist representation as it has since 1948.

The Communists had been

Mac Now Secure in Saddle After Winning House Vote

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Macmillan pledged Britain's continued support of the United Nations Monday night and dealt a resounding defeat to the Labor opposition seeking to censure Foreign Secretary Lord Home for a speech criticizing the world organization.

The Labor motion was defeated by a vote of 326 to 228 — a government majority of 99, just two less than the Conservatives' nominal majority of 100 in the House of Commons.

Macmillan had invited Churchill to sit beside him during the debate. It was the first time the wartime leader of Britain sat on the government bench since his resignation in 1955 following a stroke.

Harold Wilson, the Labor party's foreign policy expert, bitterly attacked Macmillan and Lord Home in the windup speech for the opposition.

Labor View — 'Fumbling, Indecisive'

Wilson said among government supporters are "a group of original, true-blue, dyed-in-the-wool Conservatives who have never accepted the UN at any point in its history."

"For some of them, the trouble with the UN is that there is a majority of foreigners there."

"What is worse, the proportion has risen sharply in the last few years and some are the wrong kind of foreigners — too many colored and from ex-colonial territories with the wrong ideas."

He denounced Macmillan as a fumbling, indecisive prime minister.

Macmillan said that despite the UN's shortcomings and dangers of early bankruptcy, his government would support the world body. He said the UN "can never be made to work" until East and West resolve their differences and begin working together.

At the same time the prime minister was indirectly defending himself against Conservative critics who claim his leadership is stale and tired.

Why Can't You Remember

A noted publisher in Chicago reports there is a simple technique for acquiring a powerful memory which can pay you real dividends in both business and social advancement and works like magic to give you added poise, necessary self-confidence and greater popularity.

According to this publisher, many people do not realize how much they could influence others simply by remembering accurately everything they see, hear, or read. Whether in business, at social functions or even in casual conversations with new acquaintances, there are ways in which you can dominate each situation by your ability to remember.

To acquaint the readers of this paper with the easy-to-follow rules for developing skill in remembering anything you choose to remember, the publishers have printed full details of their self-training methods in a new book, "Adventures in Memory," which will be mailed free to anyone who requests it. Scottish Nationalists Campaign For What Seems Hopeless Cause

EDINBURGH (AP) — Scotland's Nationalists are campaigning again, but few outside their own ranks expect them to succeed in the old Highland dream of kicking out the English.

The Nationalists are a highly vocal group who have failed thus far to elect a single member to the British Parliament. Now they have hit on a new gimmick to arouse the kind of anti-English feeling that flourished when the Scottish clans fought the English more than two centuries ago.

They are seeking a plebiscite to decide whether Scotland wants to break its political ties.

At present, Scotland is administered as part of the United Kingdom, bound by the rulings of Parliament in London. This arrangement has long irked some Scottish patriots, who want more control over their own affairs.

Among those backing the campaign for a plebiscite are Lord Boyd Orr, the Earl of Airlie and the Countess Erroll, who has the title of Lord High Constable of Scotland.

They believe a referendum would show most Scots willing to cut loose from England.

PROOF AWAITED
The British government is certain to oppose such a plebiscite unless overwhelming evidence shows a demand for it.

"There is nothing in the constitution to prevent the holding of a plebiscite," said a home office spokesman in London, "but the government would be unlikely to order a special vote on a specific domestic issue without extraordinary grounds."

So far the Scottish home-rulers have failed to produce anything like the proof required in London. But the Nationalists hope public opinion will swing their way.

If the plebiscite ever comes about, Scotland's 3,500,000 voters will be asked to decide what kind of government they want. Dominion status, such as Canada has, would make Scotland entirely self-governing and independent within the Commonwealth.

Home rule, as in Northern Ireland, would give the Scots internal political autonomy but still allow the English to control Scotland's foreign and defence policies.

There is a third choice, of course — leaving things as they are, with Scotland's affairs handled by its own representatives to Parliament in London.

Demands for an all-Scotland vote are being promoted by the Scottish Plebiscite Society, which is seeking $280,000 to finance its campaign.

Unions 'Goaded' Into Submission

By AB KENT

The B.C. government has conceded nothing to B.C. Electric employees in its claim of recognition for their unions, NDP-CCF member for Vancouver East Arthur Turner said Monday.

He said Labor Minister Leslie Peterson had made a point that the government is recognizing the unions in providing collective bargaining rights.

"The government is not conceding anything at all; absolutely nothing," Mr. Turner said.

He referred to conciliation board procedure in resolving a bargaining dispute, the decision of which would be binding upon both parties. However, since the government through the labor relations branch appoints one member and the government hydro authority appoints a second member, this leaves only one remaining seat for an employee representative.

"All they can do is talk about it. . . . The employees will be goaded into submission," Mr. Turner said.

He said the employees could not get a fair deal under this arrangement.

The member said the least the government could do is to put another member on the board to even up the representation.

Funeral Law Asked

Legislation at the current session controlling prepaid funeral plans was urged Monday night by Donald Brotherton, Social Credit MLA for Rossland-Trail.

Mr. Brotherton said he brought the recommendation "most strongly" from a Trail undertaker which his law firm had represented.

He said the undertaker had been selling such plans, but putting the money raised into a trust fund.

He suggested the legislation be "strict" and include: Protection of the funds held by undertakers; bonding of salesmen; and a standard form of contract with a seven-day money-back guarantee.

Mr. Brotherton also said he did not think the government should take over the West Kootenay Power and Light Co. originally suggested by Premier Bennett—unless it was necessary to incorporate its service into a provincial power grid.

'Brevity of Life'

Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi said he'd rather preach a sermon than give a speech in the legislature Monday afternoon.

His subject, he said, should be "The Brevity of Life." Maybe it might be a lot more worth while to take up the time allotted me in this behalf rather than speaking on things political, he said.

"One thing for sure—we're all going to answer some day when the call comes."

Then he launched into an hour's worth of "things political," at the conclusion of which Opposition Leader Strachan informed him across the floor:

"I suggest you don't know what you're talking about."

Club Fees Asked

Right to impose licence fees on clubs, vending machines and carnivals, and to pass bylaws regulating use of Thetis Lake Park, was sought by the City of Victoria Monday in the legislature.

City Social Credit MLA J. Donald Smith presented a city petition seeking amendments to the Incorporation of Victoria Act.

The city wants to settle the problem of double jurisdiction over Thetis Lake Park by passing its own regulations governing access, recreation and conservation. At present provincial officials enforce provincial regulations.

The city also wants power to assess a $100 six-monthly licence fee on all clubs serving liquor, after protests that they are competing with restaurant trade.

A $50 six-monthly fee is sought for carnivals.

A $50 six-monthly fee is requested for vending machines.

Final city request is for a $20 half-yearly licence on all vehicles operated for trade and business.

Museum Proposed

A new museum for Indian arts and crafts located at Portage Inlet was proposed in the legislature Monday by Social Creditist John Tisdalle from Saanich.

He said he had the site all picked out, and had taken Recreation Minister Earle Westwood out to see it.

"So far there had not been too much response to his idea," he admitted.

"The B.C. Indian should have a proper showcase for arts and crafts," he said.

Greater Victoria was the logical place, and the Portage Inlet site was ideal.

BOYS' SCHOOL FAILING SAYS TISDALE

Brannan Lake School for boys near Nanaimo is not doing a good job of solving delinquency, according to John Tisdalle, Social Credit MLA for Saanich.

He said that from personal contact with boys sent there, and girls sent to Willingdon School in Burnaby, he got the impression that young people regarded the correctional institutions as "training for higher honors" in a life of crime.

He called for smaller, decentralized institutions, where personal contact, trained obedience and physical therapy were emphasized.

At present many of the young people at Brannan Lake and Willingdon ended up going on to "the big house"—Oakalla.

B.C. Asked To Boost Peace Fund

The B.C. government was asked Monday to give official support to the Canadian Peace Research Institute by granting at least $5,000 to its current drive for funds.

Mrs. Camille Mather (NDP-CCF-Delta) gave notice of motion in the legislature that the grant be passed to assist the research bureau, a movement "of tremendous importance and advancement."

The institute is the creation of Dr. Norman Z. Alcock, a Canadian scientist who believes such an organ functioning at a university can do scientific research into the causes of wars and their prevention.

UP TO $2 MILLION

The federal government has agreed to donate on a matching basis any amount raised by the public drive—up to $2,000,000—Mrs. Mather said.

She called for establishment of a department of arts and culture in B.C., where creativity has not kept pace with industrialization.

Recognition to such people as Emil Carr was belated, she thought.

"It's time we began recognizing these people before they die."

Trade Stamp Debate Taboo

Debate on trading stamps has been banned in the legislature by Speaker Hugh Shantz.

Earlier in the session speakers had been allowed to talk about the currently controversial issue because a legislative committee to study it had not been set up.

However, although it still is not officially constituted, Mr. Shantz ruled Monday the subject is taboo.

He quoted standing orders to the effect that matters which will be under study of the House cannot be debated. "It is not proper to speak on trading stamps," he said.

CURBS ASKED ON OIL FIRMS

A new investigating board should be set up to study and make recommendations on oil company control over service station retail outlets, Arthur Turner (NDP-CCF-Vancouver East) told the House Monday.

He said the automotive retailers—representing 1,400 out of 2,000 outlets in B.C.—are asking for "orderly merchandising, that's all."

Under the existing arrangements they have the "tied service station" which is bound to company control.

500,000 Called Up

BERLIN (UPI)—The Communists Monday called half a million young East Germans to register for 18 months of army service.

NEED FOR HANSARD SHOWN

One Word Starts Hassle

By FRANK RUTTER

Need for a Hansard—verbatim record of speeches in the legislature—was shown up Monday during a bitter exchange between government and opposition over newspaper reports of the session.

The flareup came when Trail Social Creditist Donald Brotherton was defending his law firm's actions on behalf of an undertaker selling pre-paid funeral plans.

He protested an attack made by Mrs. Lois Haggen (NDP-CCF-Grand Forks) on such schemes during which, he said, she branded his law firm as representing "a swindle."

"I didn't say it was a swindle," said Mrs. Haggen. She asked him to withdraw the remark.

Speaker Hugh Shantz said that past practice in such cases was to let the matter "stand" when one member made an accusation and another denied it.

"You don't have to withdraw," chipped in Premier Bennett.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan rose to make a point of order, and the premier tried to drown him out.

"I don't expect the premier to start shouting at me before I've made my point of order," said Mr. Strachan hotly, amid cries of "arrogance" from the opposition.

He insisted Mr. Brotherton read out the press report.

He did. It said: "I can't understand his part in this swindle."

"There you are, there you are," cried the premier thumping his desk heavily.

'NOBODY WITHDRAWS'

Said Mr. Strachan, bitterly, "Nobody has to withdraw anything any more in this House." There were mutters from the opposition of "We need a Hansard."

(The CCF in years past has regularly pressed for verbatim records.)

A report on tooth decay from Bristol-Myers

Mouth bacteria turn food into acid in 5 minutes.

Read what you can do to protect your teeth—and how Ipana helps fight tooth decay

IPANA FIGHTS BACTERIA WITH:

1. hexachlorophene
2. sodium lauryl sulphate

TOOOTH decay is a major health problem in Canada. Here, for instance, is what was revealed by a dental study conducted among high school students in Toronto:

By age 19, 98 out of every 100 of these students suffered from decaying teeth.

What causes decay? How can it be prevented or reduced? It's a big subject—but here are a few significant facts from Bristol-Myers, manufacturer of pharmaceutical products and of Ipana toothpaste.

How food is turned into acid and what you can do about it

Everybody's mouth, no matter how clean or healthy, harbours many breeds of bacteria. Some of them perform useful tasks. But others act in hostile fashion.

The real villains labour under the awesome name of lactobacilli acidophili. They are passionately fond of carbohydrates—especially sugars. They devour sugars ravenously, then turn them into lactic acid—in less than five minutes.

The harsh fact is that this acid can etch away the hard enamel surface in a distressingly short time. Particularly when it is held against the teeth by sticky food particles.

Here are three ways you and your family can combat this most unwelcome action:

1. Clean your teeth after meals;
2. Go easy on candy, cookies and other sweet foods;
3. Brush with Ipana—it contains two ingredients added specifically to fight bacteria—hexachlorophene and sodium lauryl sulphate.

Why brushing after meals is more than just a fussy fad

Brush as soon as possible after meals. Even if you use nothing on your brush at all, you'll accomplish something. Some food particles will be dislodged from the crevices around your teeth. And, of course, when they're denied food to work on, the lactobacilli can't manufacture so much acid.

So, brush after you eat. Without toothpaste if you like—but you'll do a superior job with Ipana. Here's why. Ipana's unique formula includes two ingredients added specifically to work on the bacteria problem. Their chemical names are hexachlorophene and sodium lauryl sulphate.

Hexachlorophene is known in dental circles as a bacteriostat. Its job is simply this—to kill some bacteria and, in effect, to stun others, so they can't reproduce. Either way, it means fewer lactobacilli acidophili—and less acid.

Sodium lauryl sulphate works in two ways. It is

1. an anti-enzyme, and
2. an oral detergent.

Its anti-enzymatic action interrupts bacilli, makes their life miserable for a time. While they're preoccupied, they produce less lactic acid.

As an oral detergent, the sodium lauryl sulphate penetrates deep between teeth to ferret out tiny, clinging particles of food. The result—less food than ever. And less acid.

Why children's teeth need special care

Reduction of mouth acid in this way is a telling factor in the preservation of mature, adult teeth. But it is vastly more important with children's teeth.

Young teeth are especially vulnerable while they are growing, hardening, and strengthening their defences against decay. Brushing after meals is downright necessary if you want your children to have fewer cavities.

Age two is the ideal time to start children on the habit of brushing after every meal, and before they go to bed. Instilling the brushing habit may not be easy, but Ipana can help lighten this parental load.

Children seem to appreciate Ipana's tingling, sprightly flavour. They'll likely take willingly to brushing with Ipana (or as willingly as two-year-olds do anything that is not a natural inclination).

Gum trouble—a cause and a solution

Adults have their special needs, too. Care of the gums, for instance.

Gum disorders plague many adults—and in extreme cases are the cause of the wholesale loss of teeth. Build-up of scale (tartar) is a major cause of gum irritation. You should look to your dentist to rid you of this bother.

Vigorous brushing with pleasant-tasting Ipana helps prevent scale from building up in the first place. And, hexachlorophene and sodium lauryl sulphate fight the bacteria which cause infection of sore gums.

A dental report from Bristol-Myers.

LOOKS AT SPORTS

As a soccer expert of long standing (and some sore-sitting—you would have a tender caress, too, if you spent two hours on a Royal Athletic Park press chair) I have been amazed at the number of reasons advanced for the success of Victoria United.

Some pseudo-experts attribute the team's heavenly flight into the upper stratosphere of the Pacific Coast Soccer League to the dexterity of its youthful goalkeeper, Barry Sadler.

This may be true. The last time I saw a pair of hands as quick as Sadler's was when I parked next to a young swain and his chicken at a drive-in theatre. I meant to ask Sadler if he apprenticed for his job with United at the local passion pit but I remembered that it couldn't possibly be. Anybody knows that boys Barry's age—19—are more interested in flickers than flippers.

Other fitba' followers maintain that Geoffrey Hill is the man responsible for United's ascendancy. Mr. Hill is without question the most significant British export to hit Victoria since Lady Chatterley's Lover. His forte is scoring goals. This he does with his feet or his head.

His constant and effective thrusts into space—"headers" they're called—are reported to be the envy of John Glenn, a fellow who is having trouble getting off the pot. It would be foolhardy to argue that Sadler and Wells—er, Hill—have not contributed muscle, toil, perspiration and glamorous touches to United's cause. But actually, chaps, they are only accessories to the fact.

Potpourri of Haggis, Mush, Bagpipes

Victoria United percolates primarily because of the spry mental calculations of its presiding genius and manager, Wallace Milligan.

His performance is all the more remarkable when you consider he works under a great handicap. Two of them, in fact. As a native of Glasgow, a postwar transplant, he naturally hates to give anything away, even ideas.

He seems to have overcome this problem but the second one—how to communicate with his players—is less easily solved.

Speaking Glaswegian may be perfectly alright at a Robbie Burns' dinner. But to most Canadians, the Milligan forensics sound like a weird blend of haggis, mush and bagpipes.

Whether by an interpreter or his banny disposition (with his personality he could sell razor blades to Fidel Castro) he gets the message across.

Example: Ten days ago against Columbus, he instructed Henry Vanderhorst to rove all over the field. This was Milligan intuition, distinctly at variance with the Outd Sod soccer book which regards positional play as a cardinal precept.

Jack, Nikita, Zsa Zsa Work Harder

As it turned out, Columbus left this glorious Island with the firm belief that they had been beaten by 11 people named Vanderhorst. He was literally everywhere, breaking up plays, setting up plays and scoring.

Milligan's play was based on Vanderhorst's speed. Had the latter not been in fine shape, both he and Milligan would have been gassed.

The Milligan brain cells were at it again Saturday. Shortly after the start of the second half against New Westminster, the master turned to the player on his right and said: "Timmy, go and get me a goal."

Timmy Walker wiggled out of his warmup pyjamas, replaced George Paul, and moved into position. Spotting him, Bill went into one of his routine orbits and directed a beautiful header onto Timmy's toes. Without stopping to count the stitches on the ball, Timmy swished, the ball sailed, Merv Schweitzer gulped, and Milligan's orders had been fulfilled.

Kennedy has to bulldoze Congress to get his bidding. Khrushchev resorts to intimidation. Even Zsa Zsa Gabor has to wiggle. But not Milligan. Say it—it's done.

In the Victoria dressing room, he tried mightily to disclaim full honors.

Little United Nations Got Message

"Timmy had been sitting there, saying, 'Send me in, I'll get a goal,' so I just sent him in." He turned to Walker for confirmation.

"Isn't that right, Timmy?" Walker smiled.

This didn't explain how Milligan, the gentleman with birrs in his tongue, gets his instructions clearly understood. Unwittingly, Jack Spry, Milligan's counterpart with Royals, brought out the answer.

Spry had needed a reporter who mistakenly referred to the pair as Scots.

"Not a bit of it," said Spry in mock seriousness. "Milligan may be one—he can't help it—but all the rest are with United."

"Wait now," said Milligan. "On this team we have two Dutchmen, a German, two Englishmen, a Hungarian, a Scot."

There it was... "a Scot." Milligan feeds his brogue to the Scot—that is, he drops the Shakespearian and United is in business.

Hoot, mon! If ye no ken that, ye're not w' it.

Boxla Brass Accepts Hall of Fame Offer

VANCOUVER (CP)—A lacrosse Hall of Fame will be established to commemorate the greatest players in Canada's national sport.

The annual meeting of the Canadian Lacrosse Association held here during the weekend accepted an offer of the city of New Westminster, B.C., to establish a hall in a planned new $2,000,000 sports arena.

T. F. Gordon of New Westminster, retiring association secretary-treasurer, said it is hoped a start on the Hall of Fame will be made this year.

But it may be next December before a money bylaw is put before the ratepayers, it was reported in New Westminster.

PROMOTION PLANS

Gordon said that the annual meeting spent considerable time reviewing ways and means of promoting lacrosse, and decided that all teams would compete during the regular season under rules used during Canadian championships.

BRAGG ON UELSES:

'... Not a Great Jump'

NEW YORK (AP)—Olympic champion Don Bragg, acknowledging he's "a little jealous," said Monday he is unimpressed by John Uelses' record 16-foot, 4-inch pole vault.

"It's not a great jump," the former record holder from Penns Grove, N.J., added. "All he (Uelses) did was perfect something in a new field with a new gimmick—the glass fibre pole."

Bragg, recently released from the army and looking for a job, said he used an aluminum pole in winning the 1960 Olympic crown and in setting the previous world record of 15 feet, 9 1/2 inches.

This took speed, strength and coordination, he added, while with the glass fibre pole "only co-ordination counts—the pole does all the work."

He contended that if Bob Richards and Bob Gutowski were competing today with the new pole, they would be hitting 16 feet, 6 inches. Bragg said the glass pole should be banned.

Uelses, the Marine corporal who soared 16 feet, 4 1/2 inches in New York's Millrose Games and then went to 16 feet, 3 1/2 inches at Boston Saturday night, was not disturbed by Bragg's comments.

"That's progress," the corporal said. "Let him come out of retirement and try it."

'Spiel's Youngest Rink Edges Oldest Quartet

By ERNIE FEDORUK

One of the selling points promoters of curling like to use is the family angle:

Man or boy, husband and wife, or father and daughter... all can compete together on a sheet of ice and the results are generally respectable.

Monday's opening draws in the Pacific Coast Curling Association bonspiel provided an excellent example for curling's salesmen.

It probably wouldn't happen again, unless the "fix" was on, but the bonspiel's oldest and youngest rinks were drawn against each other.

VETERANS CAME CLOSE

Roger Pick, 19; Bud Taylor, 21; Bob McPherson, 18, and Glen Ashby, 18, make up the 'spiel's youngest foursome. Their aggregate age (76) can't even touch that of the skip of the bonspiel's oldest.

The elder statesman is Dr. A. E. Walkey of Hamilton, Ont. He's 81.

Dr. Walkey's rink, which includes Tom Rolston, Gerald Walkey and Ted Smith, has an aggregate of just over 250 years.

Don't think they can't curl! Pick's rink was hounded before carving out an 8-7 victory.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett took time out from the legislative session to toss first rock in ceremonies opening the bonspiel.

He gave the big 'spiel a good sendoff, sliding the stone into the house to the accompaniment of enthusiastic applause.

Al Mather's highly rated rink from New Westminster fell with a thud in its first start. After missing a chance for a five-ender on the first end, Mather could do little right, finally conceding to Gar Taylor after eight ends when trailing by a 13-1 count.

Play in the 'spiel Monday was confined to the 'A' main and 'A' secondary events. Today, rinks opened the 'B' main and secondary competitions.

An entry from Radisson, Sask., earns the distinction of being the complete rink curling the furthest to curl. Entered by Harry Hoffman, the Prairie rink will be skipped by John Newbold.

PROVINCIAL CHAMPS

City Pair Eyes Dominion Title

A sweet-skating Victoria duo, delighted over their victory in the senior dance event of the B.C. sectional figure skating championships at Vancouver on the weekend, looked forward today to competing in the Canadian finals at Toronto Feb. 22-24.

Wendy Nordby and Douglas Doidge captured the B.C. event with 141.2 points.

At Toronto they will compete as juniors. They may be joined by the Victoria pair of Sharon Wood and Bryce Sweetnam. They finished third at Vancouver behind Elizabeth Paukert and Don Phillips of the mainland and Dee.

Norman Jean Sedlar, 17, of Vancouver's Connaught Club won the ladies' singles. In second place was Bonnie Jean Jackson.

Robbie Fiddes, 16, of Vancouver Connaught Club, took the senior men's singles. Second place went to Mark Bowman of Vancouver Kerrisdale.

In the novice mixed pairs first place went to Betty Ann McKilligan and John McKilligan of Nanaimo with 37.4 points.

Sonia Burling and Richard Madden of Victoria were second and Brenda Maple and Paul Fisher, also of Victoria, were third.

In the senior ladies pairs, third place went to Deirdre Humphries and Sharon Wood of Victoria.

'Break New Ground' Dief Directs Council

Sports Board Spends Nary A Penny at First Meeting

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister John Diefenbaker today urged the newly-formed National Sports Advisory Council to lead Canadians to new standards of physical fitness and athletic achievement.

The prime minister told the opening meeting of the 30-member council its prime task was to "break new ground" by spelling out a blueprint for a national fitness program.

"You are the forerunners in a national development which, I trust, will raise Canada to new standards in fitness and achievement," he said. "I am certain your work and this program will pay great dividends in this and future generations."

Diefenbaker, who named cricket as his main—and most successful—boyhood sport, said the new federal program, featuring a $5 million annual grant, was "not devoted solely or even mainly" to competitive sport. Rather the accent was on fitness and recreation programs so that Canadians in general could develop "physical health, vigor and stamina," he said.

POTENTIAL EXISTS

At the same time, however, the prime minister said the program could do its part toward "the making of champions."

"We can produce more amateur competitors of this calibre and we will," he said.

"There are many young people in Canada with the potential to reach the top if they are given the tools, the training and the environment in which champions are made."

Diefenbaker admitted that international sports had taken on new prestige with the Communists' effort to use them for "propaganda" purposes. But he questioned whether Canada's record was as bad as some suggested.

"I think Canadians tend to put their amateur sport successes on the back pages," he said.

ROCKET ABSENT

All but one of the council's members were on hand for the two-day meeting. Missing was probably its most famous name—former hockey great Maurice (Rocket) Richard who, a spokesman said, was tied up with speaking engagements.

Present to work on the lengthy agenda, which included a suggested sports festival in 1965, were such sport stars as former hockey player Howie Meeker and footballers Herb Trivick and Joe Poirier. The council is headed by former Canadian Olympic Association president Ken Farmer.

Health minister J. Weido Monteth, who also addressed the group before it went into closed session, cautioned the members not to "sacrifice soundness for speed" in allocating the available funds.

TOUGH CHORE

The panel took his advice. Not a cent of the $5,000,000 was spent at the meeting. In fact, giving away the money may not be the easy assignment it appears.

The council already has received between 300 and 400 requests for financial aid. A spokesman said they involve to "a very large amount of money," but declined to give an estimate.

Many of the requests are from various sports leagues and the like. But Mr. Farmer indicated at a press conference that this type of request will get little attention.

The aim was to expand opportunities for Canadians to take part in physical activity, he said. Most of the activity now under way did not need added support.

MAY SPEND MORE

Mr. Farmer said he hopes to see the plan enlarged beyond its present ability. "I think we're going to end up spending more than $5,000,000."

The council Monday accepted a broad definition of amateur sport as "any athletic or other physical activity when engaged in solely for pleasure, recreation or fitness and not as a means of livelihood."

It stumbled, however, on a definition of fitness. Members turned the matter over to a committee.

Other committees study problems such as setting the standard for sports projects which would qualify for grants, bursaries and scholarships, research, leadership training programs and publicity.

Totems Triumph

VANCOUVER—Alberni Valley Chieftains and Victoria High Totems gave Vancouver Island teams an even break in four exhibition high school basketball games played here last weekend.

Totems tripped Lord Byng 64-46 and Alberni upset John Oliver 55-42, but Oak Bak lost 54-28 to Vancouver College and Courtenay was beaten 55-42 by Killarney.

"We have written commitments from all the countries

in doubt. We expect them to meet these commitments."

LeBel said he anticipated little change in the schedule and not too much opposition from Communist countries.

Nineteen teams will compete if the East Germans obtain travel permits.

Aylward Says 'Y' Swim Kids 'Were Terrific'

Victoria's Flying Y swimming team may be tender in years and experience but they are not giving anything away in performance.

Coach Al Aylward's petite mermaids scored two thirds and a fourth against the best in the Pacific Northwest in an invitational meet at Seattle's posh Washington Athletic Club.

Susan Murphy, 12, sparked a 11 and 12-year-old Flying Y girl's relay team, consisting of Lynn Grossman, Janie and Julie Dawe to third place.

Susan herself placed third in the 100-yards freestyle and fourth in the 100-yards breaststroke.

Her time in the freestyle was a sizzling 1:07.5.

Said Aylward: "The kids were terrific."

Pakistan Closes Gap in Cricket

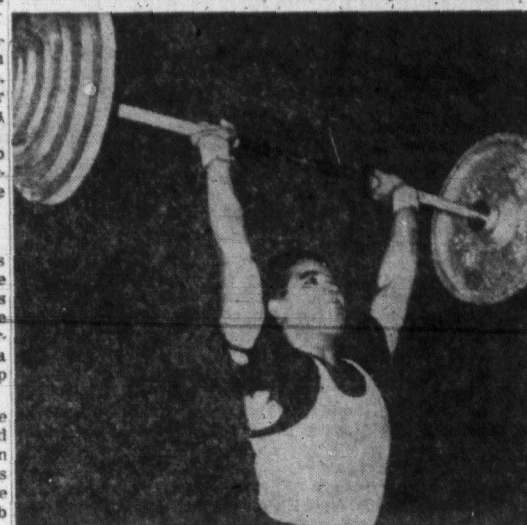

KARACHI (Reuters)—Pakistan, trailing by 254 runs after the first innings, reached 147 for two at the close of fourth day play in the third and final test match with England today.

Pakistan began the day well by capturing England's six last wickets in 90 minutes for the addition of 54 runs, leaving England all out for 507.

FRANCE SNUBS PLAN; SKI MEET CANCELLED

BERN, Switzerland (Reuters)—The 1962 world alpine ski championships scheduled for Chamonix, France, next week have been cancelled but some form of competition will take place, the International Ski Federation said today.

The federation's president, Marc Hodler, made the announcement after learning that French officials have turned down a plan to issue special sports passports to the East German ski team to enter France.

France has barred passports to East Germans because of the close of the Berlin border.

The prevention of entry of the East Germans meant the meet had to be cancelled under the federation's rules, Hodler said.

TOO LATE TO CHANGE

Hockey Tourney Plans Continue

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—World hockey officials say the final official schedule of events for the world tournament here will be released by the first of next week.

"The tournament will go as scheduled," said Robert LeBel of Montreal, president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, and Thayer, Tutt of Colorado Springs, chairman of the organizing committee.

LeBel said Monday he would like the East German team to compete "but if they can't, we will go along with the tournament as planned."

The tournament is set for Colorado Springs and Denver, Colo., March 7-18. The East German team has been denied a travel permit from the Allied Travel Office in West Berlin.

"We have read many stories where the Czechoslovakians and Russians are demanding a change of site," said LeBel and Tutt. "This is an impossibility, not only because it takes at least a year to organize an event like this, but also because there is no real reason to make the switch."

"We have written commitments from all the countries

in doubt. We expect them to meet these commitments."

LeBel said he anticipated little change in the schedule and not too much opposition from Communist countries.

Nineteen teams will compete if the East Germans obtain travel permits.

TEE TOPICS

On the 16th green at Colwood Sunday, George (Porky) Andrews was lining up a 12-foot putt when Laurie Kerr turned to his caddy and made a blunt prediction: "This one's right in the centre of the cup."

It was, and Andrews and Kerr went on to post a 2 and 1 victory over Oak Bay's Dr. George Bigelow and the other Laurie, Carroll, in the open button matches.

Kerr's prediction on the 16th seemed out of place in light of the fact that on the 15th Andrews flubbed a four-footer for a birdie.

But Porky was only proving what Kerr knows, and something that Dr. Bigelow and Carroll won't deny. . . . They don't make better competitors than school teacher George Andrews.

His two-under 68 was the best individual round in one of the best button matches of the year. The Colwood team had a best ball of 65 while Carroll and Dr. Bigelow had an approximate 67.

There was one other instance in which Andrews backs up rivals' evaluation of him. On the eighth, he three-putted from "birdie distance," then came back a few holes later to drop a 50-footer for another birdie.

It was a near miss, but two sisters who play at Oak Bay came close last week to marking up one of golf's biggest oddities of the year.

When Mrs. W. H. C. (Phyllis) Means connected for a hole-in-one on Oak Bay's second hole, her sister, Mrs. G. E. (Peggy) Harris, was playing in the following threesome.

Mrs. Harris did her best to duplicate her sister's feat. Peggy's shot finished four inches from the cup.

Button-holders retained their laurels and another hole-in-one was recorded during weekend activity at Cedar Hill Golf Club.

Bob and Les Curran made their second successful defence of the club's open buttons Sunday by defeating Jack Hill and Murray Russell.

Junior button-holders Greg Barnes and Bill Smith chalked up a second victory while defending their trophies Saturday, beating Ray Saxon and Al Douglas.

Gus Fukuyama fired the ace, dropping his tee shot on the 125-yard 18th hole. Holes-in-one were also scored on the 130-yard sixth in late January by Fred Norsworthy and Tony Ritchie.

SHORT CHIPS: When Gorge Vale's John Carlow stepped out of the president's chair after three years of service, B.C. Golf Association officials honored the Victorian by presenting him with an engraved, silver cigarette case.

Vancouver's Allan Clark is the new president. . . . Victorians on the directorate include Sid Holland and Vic Painter. . . . and Victoria District Committee president Harry Young, who still has a year to serve on the BCGA directorate, is shortly to be named a governor of the Royal Canadian.

Incidentally, due largely to its decision not to sponsor the B.C. Open, the BCGA ended 1961 in the black—the first time in three years. . . . The surplus was $1,894.

Ardmore Golf Club, which recently fell into the BCGA fold, is now considering membership in the Victoria District Committee. . . . At present, Oak Bay, Uplands, Colwood, Gorge Vale and Cedar Hill make up the local group.

Alberta has moved ahead of B.C. and ranks behind only Ontario and Quebec as Canada's largest province in the number of golf memberships. . . . The game has really boomed in Alberta in the past few years. . . . Al Manson and Bruce MacFarlane of Oak Bay ended the reign of John Hadfield and Pete Gillan in city junior button competition Sunday at Colwood, defeating the holders on the final green. . . . Jim Dalziel and Rev. Harry Pike still hold the senior buttons. They turned back Arnold Edmonds and Charlie Robertson at Colwood last week.

A Quebec court doesn't think much of a golfer's slice. . . . A Montreal magistrate last week awarded Marc Levejac $199 in damages for a broken jaw he suffered when struck by a stray drive. . . . Fellow golfer Gilles Gagne was lining up his shot with Levejac standing to the side a short distance away. . . . Gagne sliced and the ball caught Levejac in the jaw. . . . Naden won the Navy's inter-ship golf meet last week and individual winners were Boyd Brooks, with a gross 79, and PO Cribb, with a net 62.

HERE AND THERE

Women who were girls in 1938 bravely mounted the platform at the centennial banquet of First United Church Monday night and recreated a Scottish concert they gave 24 years ago.

Led by Mrs. Lily Wilson, a pioneer member, they sang Ye Banks and Braes, O Can Ye Sew Cushions? and the famous Border Ballad.

"Any resemblance between us and any other First United Church choir is purely coincidental," said Ald. Wilson.

Things are not always what they seem.

Victoria organist Jack Langan played at a wedding last week and was not unduly surprised when the best man approached him and laid an envelope on the organ.

Jack assumed this was his fee for the afternoon and took it home. But, alas, there was no cheque inside. The envelope contained the bride's marriage licence!

It seemed as if half the population of this banana belt was aboard the new government ferry My City of Victoria when she made her inaugural run to Swartz Bay Saturday.

If you didn't bump into your doctor, you were almost sure to meet your dentist, your lawyer, your accountant or two or three other creditors.

Five buffet stations were set up to feed lunch to the 900-odd guests. There were queues to look at the engine room and a surprising number wanted to ride the elevator. If there had been any bannisters, I'm sure some would have slid down them.

Strange things get left in hotel Bibles—personal letters, bills, receipts, bus transfers and phone messages.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Two men were given prison terms by Magistrate William Ostler in city police court today for breaking into the cafeteria of the Douglas Building last month.

Arthur William Green, no fixed address, was sentenced to 14 months, and James Gilbert Erickson, 2617 Graham, received an eight-month term.

Erickson admitted to the magistrate that his problem was drink.

"But you don't seem to have done anything about it," the magistrate replied.

Magistrate Ostler told Green that his attempts over the past four years to lead a useful life had saved him from the penitentiary.

Saanich council Monday approved a request from the Canadian Peace Research Institute Development Fund for permission to hold a residential canvass from Feb. 1 to 28.

Dean of the faculty of agriculture at the University of Manitoba, J. R. Weir, will be the speaker at a meeting of the Victoria and Islands branch of the Agricultural Institute of Canada to be held in the Dominion Hotel on Monday at 8 p.m.

Dean Weir is national president of the Institute.

A recorded music program will be held in the Victoria Public Library music room on Thursday at 3 p.m.

Works to be heard include Bach's Brandenburg Concerto No. 6 and Beethoven's First Symphony.

The Oak Bay Playground Association will hold its annual meeting at the municipal hall Wednesday, starting at 8 p.m. Extension of the playground program to include children between the ages of 12 and 15 years, will be discussed.

The American Society for Metals, Victoria branch, will meet Tuesday, Feb. 13, at the Dockyard Officers Club to hear Dr. Earl Haynes, U.S. Bureau of Mines, speak on "Recent Developments in Beryllium Metallurgy."

The Victoria Camera Club will meet Wednesday, Feb. 28, not this Wednesday as reported Monday, at the St. John Ambulance Hall.

Tax exemption for the Salvation Army's Matson Lodge and surrounding property was granted by Esquimalt council Monday night.

The exemption was granted in lieu of a municipal grant.

The RCN Pacific Command frigate HMCS Beacon Hill will carry out surface and anti-aircraft firing practice in the Race Rocks-Trial Island area from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Monday, Feb. 12.

St. Alban's 50-Up Club will meet Thursday in the Parish Hall, 1468 Ryan Street, at 2:15 p.m.

SPEAKERS IN THE HOUSE

Speakers in the legislature at today's 8 p.m. sitting:

Herbert Bruch (SC-Esquimalt); Rae-Eddie (NDP-CCF-New Westminster); Don Robinson (SC-Lillooet).

The schedule for Wednesday at the 2 p.m. sitting is:

Frank Calder (NDP-CCF-Atlin); William Murray (SC-Prince Rupert); Randolph Harding (NDP-CCF-Kaslo-Slocan); Allan Macfarlane (L-Oak Bay).

There will be no night sitting Wednesday.

RESTRICTING BYLAW ORDERED CHANGED

Boy and His Pigeons Melt Council

Oak Bay council has been accused of many things in over 55 years but never being hard of heart.

A boy and his pigeons bore this out Monday evening.

A year ago 15-year-old Ricky Cockburn, 1051 Hampshire, joined the newly-formed junior branch of the Victoria Pigeon Fanciers' Club.

He built a loft at his home measuring five by six feet at ground level, the maximum allowable under the municipal bylaw.

Into this loft he introduced, one by one, 15 pigeons, carefully selected for blood lines designed to make them top-flight racers.

With 23 other members of the junior branch, his intention was to breed birds selectively and compete in club competitions.

TOO SMALL

However, the small space proved inadequate to segregate the birds properly to breed along desired blood lines.

Then a complaint was made to the municipality alleging that the pigeons attracted rats to the area.

An inspector discovered no rats but additions to the loft that had brought it beyond the maximum limits.

Ricky's father, A. R. Cockburn, wrote to the council explaining developments and appeared, with his son, at a council meeting Monday.

MOST IN FAVOR

He brought with him a petition which had been circulated throughout the neighborhood asking for an expression of feeling from residents and which was almost completely in favor of the birds.

"It has been pointed out to me," he said, addressing the council, "that my son Ricky was erecting an aviary for his pigeons larger than that permitted by the existing bylaws of the Corporation. For his transgressions I sincerely apologize."

"However I would like to beg your indulgence in my request that he be permitted to build a bird loft in excess of the area as defined by your existing bylaw."

OFF THE STREETS

"My son and his friends are, in lieu of roaming the streets, raising a hobby, and I might say quite an expensive hobby, prize racing pigeons."

Council members were evidently sympathetic, if jocular.

"Seagulls get along all right," said Coun. Fred Robinson with a grin.

"Why don't you stand it (the loft) on end when the inspector comes round," added Coun. Allan Cox.

SPECIAL CHANGE

"I suppose we will have to make a special change in the bylaw for pigeons," continued Coun. Robinson.

Coun. Cox then moved that the matter be referred to the lands and buildings committee for an amendment to the bylaw permitting "this and such other changes as it sees fit."

The motion was carried.

Peace Centre 'Manned' By Women

An information centre for the Canadian Peace Research Institute was opened today at 821 Fort Street.

The centre will be staffed from 9 to 5, Monday through Friday, by women volunteers while a fund-raising campaign is being conducted in Greater Victoria.

Telephone inquiries can be made by calling EV 6-5222.

The Peace Research Institute is a non-profit organization which, under federal charter, will put science to work seeking an end to the threat of nuclear war. It was discussed in detail last Friday night at a public meeting at S. J. Willis School by its founder, distinguished Canadian physicist, and electronics engineer, Dr. Norman Alcock.

$4,000,000 FUND

With an international peace research fund, the institute will share $4,000,000 it is hoping to raise by public contribution and matching government grant. The money will be used to set up research procedures and employ scientists full time on the program.

Quota for Greater Victoria is $50,000. Rural canvass is now well under way and collections are being made in Victoria city. Local treasurer is Cmdr. B. W. Fairweather, 5050 Lockhaven Drive, but donations may be made at 821 Fort Street.

Charming Inn May Yield To High-Rise

Oak Bay's rapidly growing waterfront skyline seemed likely to acquire another two high-rise apartment buildings following a council meeting Monday.

An amendment to the bylaw permitting building to eight storeys on the site of the Old Charming Inn at Windsor and Beach Drive was given first reading and a public hearing scheduled prior to the next council meeting.

At a public hearing before the meeting 12 residents of Beresford Street protested passage of a similar amendment permitting erection of an apartment building in that area.

They protested on the grounds that such an apartment building would block a fine view and cause their properties to depreciate in value.

There have been reports a high-rise apartment may be built on the Old Charming Inn site which would necessitate tearing down the 55-year-old structure.

Both proposals are the result of a study by a council zoning committee during the past year.

Under the present bylaw buildings may not exceed three storeys but the amendment would provide for structures not less than four storeys and not more than eight.

NEXT WORD FROM OTTAWA ON SHELLING

Results of a three-man naval board of inquiry into the accidental firing of shells from the Canadian destroyer escort Skeena into Clallam Bay, Wash., last week have been sent to naval headquarters in Ottawa.

"Whatever will be announced, will be announced from Ottawa," a naval spokesman said.

GOVERNMENT EASES WAY FOR MARINA

The provincial government has granted Oak Bay council a one-year licence to hold 2.8 acres of waterfront until it completes negotiations with a private group which plans to build a marina there.

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Willson said the year's licence, to run until next Aug. 24, will give the municipality time to complete negotiations with the marina planners.

He gave assurance that when these negotiations are completed, the government will allow as long a lease on the property as the marina operators seek.

He's Got Ideas; Who's Listening?

An experienced Canadian show producer today showed he had no hard feelings toward the city's centennial committee.

Bruce Williams, now Canadian representative for the Seattle World's Fair, offered several suggestions for adding color to this year's celebrations without much cost.

Mr. Williams, a highly qualified coordinator and promoter, offered his services to the centennial committee here last year. His qualifications include 17 years in the RCAF as a public relations officer, who helped arrange various royal visits and military shows, including two performances over Victoria by the Golden Hawks.

He also co-ordinated the highly-praised military tattoo that was the highlight of last year's Vancouver International Festival.

NO REPLY

"I wrote a letter to Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow (centennial committee chairman) offering my services and outlining a few ideas."

"But I never got a reply. However, I'm happy to offer them free."

Mr. Williams suggested that for little cost the military cadet corps could produce a tattoo that would bring cheers from all spectators.

"It wouldn't cost much money, just some organization. And I know it can be done because it was done last year by Powell River."

EASTER PARADE

"I also think that the city could arrange a bang-up Easter parade. They could get the co-operation of the department stores and fashion stores and really have a nice show."

Mr. Williams favorite idea would also help high school or college students.

"Various companies in town should be encouraged to add some color for tourists and residents by reviving the street criers of old London idea."

"This could be done by hiring some youngsters during summer vacation and dressing them up in costume to meet the tourist ferries hawking local items as did the street criers of old."

"A girl could be hired by Butchart's Gardens or some florists, for instance, to sell lavender. The bakeries could sponsor a boy to sell muffins."

"It wouldn't cost much to hire some youngsters for a few hours and it wouldn't really matter too much if they sold many items."

"The point is that it would really be an attraction."

Mr. Williams is here to address the Victoria Insurance Agents tonight at 6:15 in the Colonial Inn to describe Century 21 plans.

FOUND WAY

"We will sign," he said, "we have found a way out which satisfies our municipal solicitor."

He explained that Saanich balked at signing the agreement because it did not have the right to make a contract relinquishing its discretionary powers with regard to parking on Douglas.

It can only forego its discretionary powers if the Municipal Act is amended.

AMENDMENT

Mr. Tribe said the problem will be overcome by adding a proviso to the agreement, stating that the agreement will only be binding if the Municipal Act is amended at the current session of the legislature.

Deputy municipal affairs minister J. Everett Brown, chairman of CIDC, said this will be done.

Municipal Affairs Minister Wesley Black has given his assurance that the Municipal Act will be amended, he said.

PARKING BAN

The amendment will enable CIDC to ban parking on a portion of Douglas Street without having first to seek the approval of Saanich.

Mr. Brown said his department hopes to start the project soon.

"We want to complete the program before the tourist season starts," he said.

BRUCE WILLIAMS
... no hard feelings

Magistrate William Ostler criticized the Crown in city police court today for laying a second charge against a youth who was already awaiting sentence for an offence committed at the same time.

Thor John Foss, 221 Menzies, an 18-year-old father of two, was to appear in court today for sentence on a charge of impaired driving Jan. 28. He pleaded guilty at an earlier hearing but Magistrate Ostler asked for a probation report.

When Foss appeared today, he was further charged with failing to remain at the scene of an accident Jan. 28.

'BAD PRACTICE'

"This must come as much as a surprise to you as it does to me," the magistrate told Foss. "It is inexplicable that the Crown should lay a charge when sentence is to be passed. It is very bad practice," he said.

The facts in the second charge were known to the prosecution at the time the first charge was laid. And these were referred to in the probation report.

'MIX-UP'

"There was a mix-up," prosecutor Angus Smith said. Foss admitted the second charge.

Magistrate Ostler handed Foss a suspended sentence under bond of $250 and suspended his licence on the impaired driving charge and fined him $50 for failing to remain.

"It's very heartening to see a young man manfully trying to meet his responsibilities," the magistrate said after reading the probation report.

At the same time he warned the 18-year-old about drinking. "You can get into sufficient trouble when you start drinking at the legal age," Magistrate Ostler said.

Legal Knot Untangled On Douglas St. Plans

A beautification project for Douglas Street costing $180,000, which has been tossed back and forth between Saanich and the Capital District Improvement Commission, appears ready to go ahead.

Saanich at the last minute last week refused to sign an agreement with CIDC and Victoria for the work to be done because of a legal technicality.

But the obstacle has been surmounted to permit the project to proceed without delay, comptroller-treasurer John Tribe said today.

"We will sign," he said, "we have found a way out which satisfies our municipal solicitor."

He explained that Saanich balked at signing the agreement because it did not have the right to make a contract relinquishing its discretionary powers with regard to parking on Douglas.

It can only forego its discretionary powers if the Municipal Act is amended.

Centennial Program Evaluation Ordered

Professional Aid Will Cost $1,000

A professional evaluation of Victoria's centennial program was ordered today after a meeting in City Hall.

Mayor R. B. Wilson said the John B. Rogers Co. has been hired to do the 10-day study and report back to the centennial committee with its recommendations.

"This company is an international firm with offices in London, Ont., and they come highly recommended," he said.

"They will do a survey of the program already planned and the possibilities of adding to it."

PAGEANT

The company also will submit an outline of how it would produce a historical pageant for the celebrations if it is given the commission.

Cost of the study, to be borne by the centennial committee, will be $1,000.

"The company's representative feels that basically the events in our centennial calendar are commendable but that there are possibilities of enhancing and enlarging it," Mayor Wilson said.

The company specializes in producing civic and other pageants and planning celebrations such as civic centennials. It has been operating in this field for 59 years.

Hiring of professional consultants to help straighten out the controversy-ridden centennial planning was first advocated by Ald. Michael Griffin despite opposition from centennial committee chairman Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow.

Prosecutor's 'Bad Practice' Criticized

Magistrate William Ostler criticized the Crown in city police court today for laying a second charge against a youth who was already awaiting sentence for an offence committed at the same time.

Thor John Foss, 221 Menzies, an 18-year-old father of two, was to appear in court today for sentence on a charge of impaired driving Jan. 28. He pleaded guilty at an earlier hearing but Magistrate Ostler asked for a probation report.

Russians Don't Give Fish a Chance

MADE FOR THE MOON—If there were an earth-size man in the moon, America's first moon vehicle might look like this to him. Vehicle above is a model, with picture of a man pasted on it to show its proposed actual size. To be built by Goodyear for NASA, the tires will be 16 feet in diameter and weigh only 125 pounds each. They are designed to move an unmanned explorer over the moon's rough surface, pioneering the way for the first human visit.

OTTAWA (CP) — Soviet fishermen are using a submarine to hunt catches in the world's oceans and depths as great as 2,700 feet.

Dr. J. L. Kask, chairman of the Canadian Fisheries Research Board, said in an interview these two developments illustrate how the Soviet Union is applying known but costly fishing techniques in an effort to become the world's leading fish producer.

Dr. Kask had an opportunity to study personally latest Soviet fishery developments during a six-week visit last September and October. He represented Canada as a United Nations research consultant at a fisheries seminar sponsored jointly by the UN Food and Agriculture Organization and the Soviet Union.

During the trip Dr. Kask visited Moscow and a number of ports on the Black Sea and Caspian Sea where he and seminar delegates from the Sudan, Israel, Syria, Yugoslavia, Indonesia and Japan were taken out on Soviet fishery research vessels.

NOT FOR PROFIT
Dr. Kask said the Russians are not applying any fishing techniques unknown to Canada or other nations. The methods weren't being used elsewhere chiefly because they were too costly.

"The Russian fishing industry is a state-owned monopoly and it doesn't have to show an immediate profit."

Dr. Kask said Russians have been successful in using a submarine to study commercial fish in the Barents Sea and the North Atlantic.

Dr. Kask was shown film taken from the submarine of herring schools and concentrations of cod. He was told that if further work with the submarine proves fruitful orders will be issued for several specially built submarines for marine research.

On the Caspian Sea Dr. Kask was aboard a research vessel which located huge schools of kiska—an anchovy type of fish—at a depth of 170 feet with an electro-sonic detector.

FISHING AT NIGHT

In a night fishing operation four powerful electric lights attached to an eight-inch rubber hose reinforced with wire mesh were lowered into the water. The hose was attached to a powerful electric pump on board the research vessel.

"Fish attracted by the lights to the mouth of the hose were pumped into the boat at a rate of one ton an hour. The catch for the night was 10 tons."

Methods of this type, Dr. Kask said, have helped make Russia the world's second largest producer behind Japan. Canada usually ranks sixth or seventh.

"It appears safe to predict that the U.S.S.R. will continue to expand and intensify her ocean fishing in all international waters of the world."

"The planners in the U.S.S.R. are counting on the fact that the production of fish and other wealth in the relatively unknown two-thirds of the world that is international ocean belongs to him who gets there fastest with the mostest."

Claimed to Be 134

HAIFA, Israel (UPI) — A man who claimed to be 134 years old died here Sunday and was buried Monday. One of the mourners was his 100-year-old son. Abraham Hanoch Meir claimed to have been born in Eastern Turkey in 1828. He was 94 when he married his fourth wife, Esther, who said that her husband grew a new set of teeth at age 109, but later lost them.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Once a week, a columnist should be a good guy. Not so often, naturally, that it'd become a habit with him.

He shouldn't, for example, scribble things like "HEY, HEY, isn't that a funny coincidence about Princess Soraya and Hugh O'Brian both being scheduled to be passengers on the Leonardo da Vinci's maiden Mediterranean cruise? Is that a mere accident (wink, wink) that she boards in Palermo about Feb. 12 and he in Greece a couple of days afterward, ho de ho ho?" (So we'll throw that out as being beneath us.)

WONT USE THIS
"Mr. Nice Guy Columnist also shouldn't print things like this:

"Dear Earl: I hope Johnny Carson won't take over the Jack Paar show. He looks like a scarecrow. I am no teenager and I know what a host for a TV show should look like. Mrs. Mattie King, Tulsa, P.S. I am 74." (Out with that, too! We won't use it!)

Are you beginning to get the idea of the things we wouldn't think of using?

—Like when Toots Shor was congratulated on his 27 years of marriage and he mumbled, "Yeah, I'm so happy, it hurts." (Why, we sure did throw that in the wastebasket fast!)

Don't write things like "Peggy Cass' hair was so nicely combed last night it looked like a wig." (People won't like you!)... or "California is now spelled Gold-forsia."... Or Neila Ates and Bobby Colt broke up their three-year engagement... or "My B.W. wasn't herself last night; she was quiet!"

THE MIDNIGHT EARL...

Harold Russell, the handsome movie star of "Best Years" (1945) comes in from Boston to reunite with friend Wm. Wyler at the "Children's Hour" premiere. Russell's new commander of Armvets.

Carol Lawrence signed for TV—she's hosted by her boy friend, Robert "Camelot" Goulet... Shirley MacLaine's driveway collapsed in the L.A. rains... Danny Thomas dir. Mario auditioned for the lead opposite Jason Robards in "A Thousand Clowns"... Tina Turner visited Basin St. East, sent souvenir cards to Paris and Athens...

Playwright Terence Rattigan—whose "Ross" is a hit—will write a screenplay for Churchill's early life... A famed H'wood director-producer was blackballed by a big Manhattan private club... A best-selling record in Germany now is "The Sauerkrout Polka," sung by an American, Gus Backus...

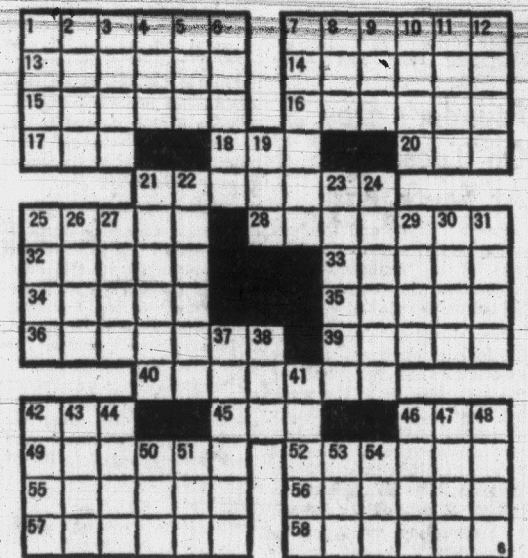

EARL'S PEARLS: Pity the boss—he has to get in early to see who comes in late.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: The two hardest things for a man to find nowadays are a sleep-in maid and an eat-in wife.

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Housework is what a woman does that nobody notices—unless she doesn't do it.

A local chorus girl is wearing her wedding ring on the wrong finger—she claims it's her way of saying she married the wrong guy. That's Earl, brother.

ask Andy

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other attractive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia, and the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to David Huffstetter, age 11, of Dallas, N.C., for his question:

What is an iguana?

The meaning of the word iguana seems to be lost in the tropical shrubbery of Central America. The Spanish may have borrowed it from an Indian name for a certain tree. Large, lolling lizards may have used this tree as a sun deck. In any case, the word iguana finally came to mean a lizard. The most famous iguana looks as fearsome as a dragon. But he is no more dangerous than any number of his small cousins living in most of North America.

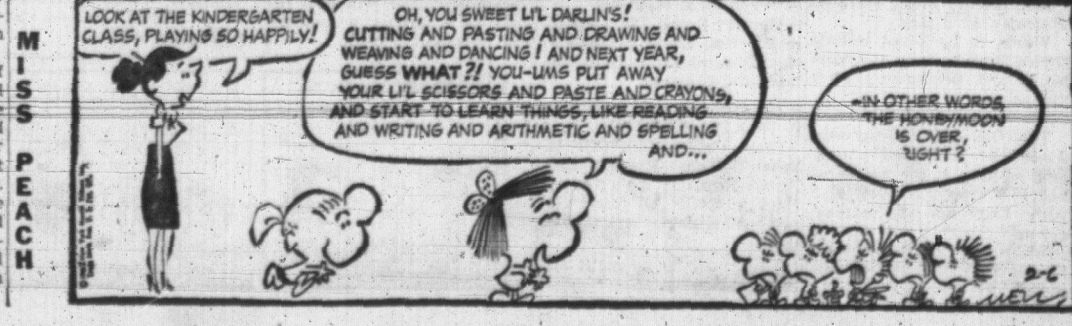

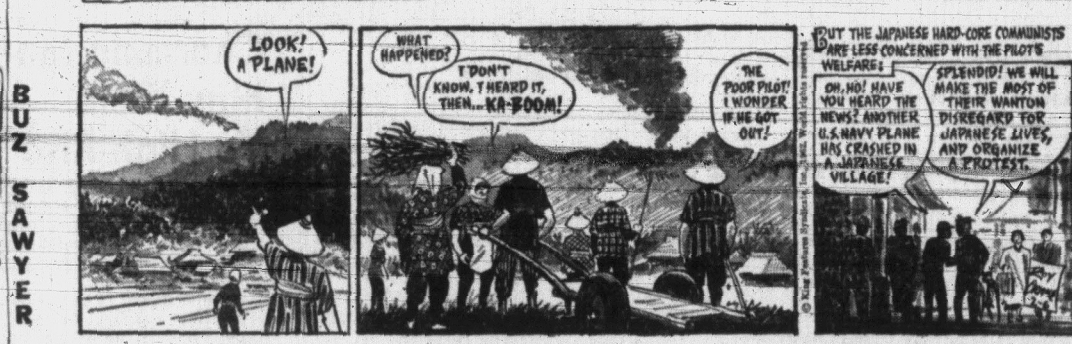

He is classified in the sub-order Sauria, which means that his family tree includes the dinosaurs, those giant scurriers who dominated the world for more than 100 million years. The iguana of the tropics is still king of the lizard family Iguanidae and his small cousins include most of the lizards of the New World.

Feeds on Tender Flowers

This big fellow is far from handsome. Down his spine he wears a fearsome row of horny scales. His scaly skin hangs over his cheeks in loose flaps and there is a waxy, white wart on each side of his throat. His back claws, which look so sharp and threatening, are merely for climbing trees. His sharp teeth are used for nothing more dangerous than snipping the tender buds, the fruit and flowers on which he feeds.

The scaly head of the adult iguana is vivid green, tinted with blue and brown. His scaly body is a duller green, often with darker stripes along the sides. Mrs. Iguana may lay 80 eggs in the soft earth. They hatch soon after the rainy seasons and for a while the world seems to be full of busy little green dragons.

Andy sends a Hammond's Library World Atlas to Greg

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

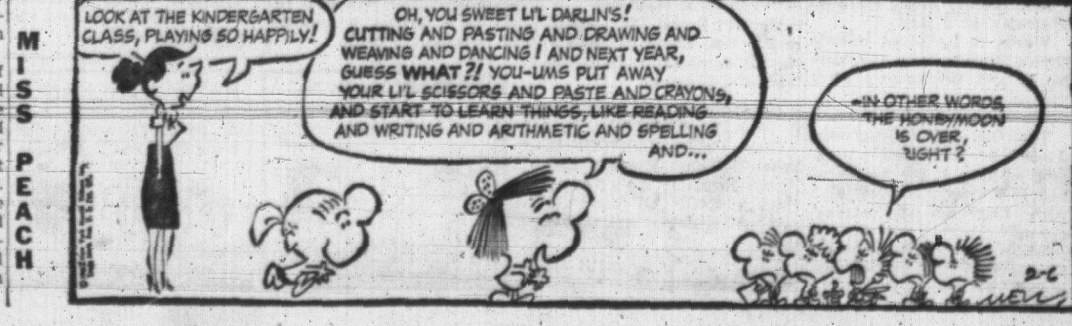

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of even 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissues on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

SHOPPING GUIDE

New Edition of Cook Book Makes It Easy

By PENNY SAVER

How many times have we heard the lament, "It's good, but just not like mother used to make." Well, gals, let's do something about it. And let's do it fast with the new edition of a beloved cook book I've seen.

The 128-page book contains hundreds of recipes for everything from meats to sweets. Each recipe is kitchen tested and fast.

For the new bride and any cooking novice, the "How You Do It" and "Why You Do It" method of stating basic recipes will be invaluable. Just like having private cooking lessons in your own home.

Under the "How" column, each step of the preparation is given in detail. Under "Why" the reason for each step is fully explained.

This information will give even the most seasoned home-maker a new slant on cooking techniques.

Appearance and behaviors of foods are fully described to help the cook recognize the "just right" stages—such as "batter will be lumpy," "thin enough to pour," "dough will leave sides of bowl."

You'll like other popular features of the book, too. Drawings illustrate how to accurately measure various types of ingredients.

For example, there's a glossary of cooking terms which explains the difference between chill and cool, mince, and chop, cut and cut in.

A special section provides the most up-to-date information on freezing home-cooked foods and there's snowflake markers on all recipes that can be frozen.

Full-color illustrations are on nearly every page and they show exactly how the prepared dishes should look.

Special guides tell which spices, herbs and flavorings are suited to which foods. That'll be a big help to most of us, won't it?

Also included for the busy hostess is a section on entertaining with clever ideas for parties—and giving food quantities for 50 servings.

Sounds out of this world doesn't it? Especially considering this entire recipe book is only $1.

Want to get one? Call me and I'll tell you how to go about it.

Penny, EV 2-3131.

Work With the Sightless Chapter's Main Project

Annual dinner meeting of Robert Burns McKicking Chapter, IOOE, held in Oak Bay Beach Hotel on Monday evening, showed work with the sightless in the city as a main project.

In the past year, a Perkins Braille writer has been purchased for use of the Victoria branch of Canadian National Institute for the Blind; a mattress, bedding, and a housecoat bought for a blind mother; a used chesterfield, a chair and new slip covers given to a blind couple; 10 hampers were packed and distributed at the holiday season, and two special teas were arranged for the blind.

Treasurer's report also showed that repairs had been made to a veteran's grave at Ross Bay Cemetery, and seven bundles of paper-back books were sent overseas.

BUSY YEAR

Total receipts for the year were $2,136.57 and disbursements $2,079.76. Proceeds from money-making events amounted to $1,809.34.

A sum of $846.68 was spent on all projects and in donations to local, provincial and national IOOE funds. The adopted school at Antigua, in the British West Indies, received assistance to an amount of $219.63; two bursaries of $100 each were presented to secondary school students; James Bay elementary school and Pender Island rural school received gifts.

Mrs. A. W. Flitton presided and was re-elected regent for a second term.

CORDUROY POOR CHOICE TO MAKE CIRCULAR SKIRT

"Dear Mrs. Farmer: I am now to the sewing, world and enjoying it very much. Now I would like to use corduroy and wonder if it can be used for a circular skirt. Some of my friends say one thing and others something else, so decided to write to you before starting."

MRS. M.H.

Dear Mrs. M.H.: I would not advise corduroy or any napped fabric for a circular skirt. Any fabric with a nap must be taken in one direction, and with a circle you would have both directions on the same garment. You could use a gored skirt pattern instead.

Assisting the hostess in receiving guests will be Dr. and Mrs. T. H. Johns, Mrs. Jay Durand and Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Young. Mrs. G. R. Mead is convenor.

Presiding at the refreshment table will be Mrs. P. C. Nevard and Mrs. A. W. Johns. Serviteurs will be Mrs. A. McKellar, Mrs. T. L. McMaster, Mrs. K. W. S. McColm, Mrs. J. W. Duncan, Mrs. H. Thirlwall and the Misses Kay Paul and Florence Miller.

Invited guests include Hon. Mr. Justice C. H. O'Halloran and Mrs. Halloran, Hon. Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton and Mrs. Wootton, Dr. and Mrs. L. Ebell, Mr. and Mrs. B. Russ, Mr. and Mrs. D. Housewives Hear Aims of Peace Institute

Mrs. Ed Savannah and Mrs. Wilson Loudon organized a group of housewives recently at the latter's home on Casey Drive to hear a talk by Dr. Harvey Richardson on the Peace Research Institute of Canada. A discussion period followed. Invited guests were Mrs. H. Boorman, Mrs. I. Wood, Mrs. R. Dick, Mrs. A. Speller, Mrs. D. Studley, Mrs. D. Duncan, Mrs. G. Hepburn, Mrs. P. Shepherd and Mrs. D. Robertson. Dr. Richardson will speak to any group, club or society on this subject.

Auxiliary Has $43,784 For New Hospital Wing

Reports of the president and secretary of the Junior Auxiliary to Royal Jubilee Hospital, Mrs. K. W. L. Scace and Mrs. D. Forrest, given Monday afternoon at annual meeting in the nurses' residence, showed $10,327.15 realized from activities during the year.

A sum of $7,500 was added to a fund invested and held to purchase medical equipment for the new hospital wing, bringing the total to $43,784.97. A donation of $581.89 was made toward purchase of a circoelectric bed; $435.80 for a new anaesthetic machine for the operating room; $125 to the occupational therapy department; a couch provided for the doctors' room and mirrors for the nurses' residence.

During the year members made 195 visits to hospital patients and gave $25 to the children's ward for school projects. Two bursaries of $200 each were awarded to nurses for post-graduate work, and cuff links were given to each member of last year's graduating class.

Three main money-making projects were the Thrift Shop, manned by more than 50 members each month, with a donation of $2,200; the Mobile Shop with a profit of $2,400, and the annual bazaar which made $4,346.29. A knitting showcase added $152.17 and the spring project, $171.05.

PRESIDENT RE-ELECTED—Mrs. Scace was re-elected president for the coming year. Other officers are Mrs. R. W. Campbell, first vice-president; Mrs. J. Pennington, second; Mrs. Forrest, recording secretary; Mrs. A. P. Rainey, corresponding; Mrs. L. J. Coulcher, treasurer; Mrs. A. H. Bamford, membership; Mrs. H. Kingsley, Mobile Shop, and Mrs. P. S. Watt, Thrift Shop.

Conveners include Mrs. F. G. Aldous, home knitting; Mrs. P. J. Steel, publicity; Mrs. G. H. Carter, knitting showcase; Mrs. I. Swemle, tea; Mrs. J. B. Hedley, training school representative; Mrs. T. H. Hewitt, Mobile Shop treasurer, and Mrs. A. B. Jackson, Thrift Shop.

Special hospital guests included George Masters, Dr. and Mrs. Murray Anderson, Miss M. E. Thompson, Miss F. Ferguson, Miss E. Moore, Miss M. O'Brien, Mrs. F. E. Bradley, and the following representatives of other hospital organizations: Mrs. P. W. Semichuk, Mrs. W. M. Martin, Mrs. D. B. Ascott, Mrs. H. Southin, Mrs. G. Coffey and Mrs. D. Leslie Macdonell.

Following the meeting, afternoon tea was served with Miss Thompson and Mrs. Southin presiding.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Possible, But Improbable!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I'm a college graduate—my fiancé isn't. I like the theatre — she falls asleep at plays. Art interests me—it seems ridiculous to her. Certain films move me—she yawns. Literature fascinates me—she wouldn't reach for a book if it was about to fall on her head. Yet, darn it, she's a very human type with sound ideas about raising a family—the kind I like. When I get all set to tell her the wedding is off, I take one look and—zowie—I'm hooked again. Could I swallow some of my interests, marry her and be happy?

FRED.
DEAR FRED: You could "swallow" some of your interests, but hardly this long list. You are trying to say that this girl would make a wonderful mother but you are intellectually mismatched. Unless you can educate her to your tastes, don't say "I do" — because chances are, you won't.

DEAR ABBY: I live in a housing development and the young woman who lives one house over from me is my problem. When my clothesline is not in use, she always asks me if she can use it. I am not a selfish person but I hate to let her use my lines because her clothes never look clean and I don't want people to think they are mine. What should I do?

GOOD NEIGHBOR.
DEAR-NEIGHBOR: Be a really good neighbor and give the young woman some helpful tips on how to get her clothes as clean-looking as yours. (What a spot for a commercial!) This is even more generous than just giving her the same old line.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing this with the hope of seeing it in print as a warning to other well-meaning mothers. We have a beautiful, 17-year-old daughter. We tried to raise her right and thought we were doing a fine job, as she was an obedient child, an honor student and a leader in church activities. We failed some where because she brought us the news that she was in trouble with a high school boy. In my grief, I confided our problem to two friends, begging them not to repeat it. I told them because I needed their prayers. Abby, these two friends told their daughters, who spread it all over school. Soon the whole town knew it. Our telephone started ringing and our daughter was like a hunted animal. On the verge of a nervous breakdown, we sent her away. She can never come back to this town. I blame no one but myself. Please tell other mothers to do their praying alone.

BROKEN-HEARTED.

How is the world treating you? Unload your problems on Abby, care of this paper.

You CAN Prevent Pyorrhea, And Here's How to Do It

The most usual reason for loss of teeth after the age of 35 is pyorrhea, and this usually can be prevented.

How do you prevent pyorrhea?

In the first place, parents should make every effort to send their children into maturity with healthy teeth and gums. If the teeth are badly aligned, this should be corrected by an orthodontist because malocclusion leads to stresses which are conducive to pyorrhea.

TODAY'S RECIPE
CARROT CASSEROLE
Eighteen to 20 medium carrots (2½ pounds), peeled, salt and pepper to taste; 2 teaspoons candied ginger, chopped fine; 2 tablespoons butter or margarine; 2 tablespoons evaporated milk; ½ cup chopped walnuts; 2 tablespoons butter or margarine.

Shimmer carrots, covered, in small amount of boiling salted water until tender. Drain and mash well; season with salt, pepper, ginger and 2 table-spoons butter. Beat well adding milk. Pile in buttered 1 quart casserole. Sprinkle with nuts and dot with 2 table-spoons butter. Bake at 375 deg. F. for 30 minutes. Makes six servings.

'This Was Their Finest Hour'

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Rev. Dr. W. G. Wilson, minister at First United Church from 1921 to 1938 and now in his 94th year, imitated the voice of Sir Winston Churchill Monday night when he said:

"If this congregation should live for a thousand years, historians will say 'This was their finest hour.'"

The occasion was the centennial banquet of First United Church—founded as the First Presbyterian Church of Vancouver Island on Feb. 3, 1862—and Dr. Wilson with many other former ministers returned to pay homage to an institution closely identified with the history of Victoria.

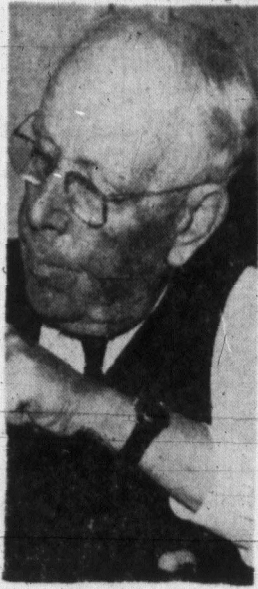

"We look back with pride on our history," said Dr. Wilson, "but we look forward to an even greater future."

More than 500 church members, gathered in the spacious Fellowship Hall, rose and cheered the veteran minister at the close of his brief address.

There were cheers, too, for Dr. Wilson's successor, Rt. Rev. Dr. Hugh A. McLeod (1898-1948), who is now moderator of the United Church of Canada.

Dr. McLeod referred to many of the pioneers who had given "life and stability" to First United, and recalled many happy memories of his ministry in Victoria.

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston brought greetings from the B.C. government and said his long association with the church began in February, 1914, when he was christened there by Rev. Dr. John Gibson Inkster (1913-1921).

DR. WILSON

"Even in those far off days," he said, "Victorians had a concern for Saanich. They thought they were a bunch of heathens out there, so they organized a Sunday school in the Gorge which became Gorge Presbyterian Church."

Mr. Williston added that the successive generations of men and women who had served First United "have been a considerable force in the life and development of this community."

Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson, on behalf of the mayor and city council of Victoria, said:

"We remember the strong Christian influence this church has had on the people of Victoria and we thank you for all the good deeds that have been done by members of this congregation."

Lawrence J. Wallace, chairman of the church's centennial committee, felt the church had been "supremely blessed" in the number of fine ministers who had served it.

Rev. Alexander Calder, minister of Oak Bay United Church and chairman of the Victoria Presbytery, said the presbytery "sets certain limits upon you but helps you when you are in need... I hope you will never need us."

Dr. Murray Anderson, chairman and organizer of the centennial banquet, introduced a number of pioneers, including Miss Helen Fraser, whose father, Rev. Donald Fraser, was minister of the church from 1884 to 1891.

'Finishing Kick' Bursary Awarded To 16-Year-Old

A 16-year-old St. Louis College student today was awarded the Ronald F. MacIsaac Bursary for 1962.

Terence Joseph Comerford, 726 Suffolk Street, won the bursary for his general excellence in studies.

The prize, worth $50 to the student, whenever he enters university, is presented after the Grade 11 mid-term exams. Its purpose is to stimulate the winning student to a further effort in his finals.

Rebel Union Favored Court Told

A Supreme Court judgment by Mr. Justice T. W. Brown was protested in B.C. Appeal Court here Monday by Local 97, International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Ironworkers and the Labor Relations Board.

They claimed that the judgment favored certification of a rebel group, Local No. 1, of the Canadian Ironworkers Union.

Raymond E. Cocking for Local 97 said the judgment approved writ claiming a denial of "natural justice," and thus gave right of way to the rebel group.

Mr. Cocking objected to a statement in the Supreme Court judgment that the breakaway union was "ambushed" in its attempt to set up in opposition to Local 97 of the International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Ironworkers.

'LED INTO TRAP'

He said the word implied that the group seeking certification before the Labor Relations Board was "consciously led into a trap."

For the Labor Relations Board, A. W. Mercer disputed the Supreme Court judgment and said the procedure adopted by the board was in fulfillment of its "natural duties."

He said the two main issues before the Labor Relations Board were:

1. Was the applicant a trade union within the meaning of the Act?
2. Did it have the majority membership required?

The hearing continues today.

NANAIMO — Vancouver Island Affiliated Fish and Game Clubs want a stiff penalty for anyone wounding or killing swans.

A resolution from Courtenay asking for a minimum fine of $500 was endorsed by the meeting after fisheries biologist David Hurn said a large number of swans had been killed last year.

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's 930,000 old age pensioners were wooed with jealous ardor in the Commons Monday.

The courting session took place as the government introduced a resolution calling for a $10 monthly increase—to $65—in the basic old age pension.

Members of all three parties—mindful no doubt that an election is coming—had nice things to say for and about the country's senior citizens, all of whom have the vote.

Another 100,000 elderly people also came in for some wooing. This is the group between ages 65 and 69 who have to pass a means test to get the pension, which in their case is called old-age assistance.

A resolution was introduced to raise these payments to $65 from $55 also. Half the $14,400,000 increase would be borne by the participating provinces.

CALLS FOR INCREASE

The resolution calling for an increase in the basic old-age pension—paid to everyone at 70—was approved unanimously just before the House rose Monday night. First reading was then given the legislation, which makes the increase retroactive to Feb. 1 this year. Debate was to continue today on second reading approval in principle.

The higher pension would start going out to elderly Canadians this month.

The old-age assistance resolution did not come to a vote and will be debated further.

Health and Welfare Minister Monteith said: "Our future aim is to have an integrated program of old-age income security which, in addition to the universal flat-rate benefit, will provide a graduated benefit for all those who can reasonably afford further provision for their old age and who have not already undertaken it under private pension plans or other contractual agreements."

Under such a contributory scheme benefits would be paid starting at 65, but it would be possible to obtain an actuarially-reduced pension at age 62. The minimum benefit would be "over and above" the non-contributory pension now in the process of being raised to $65.

Opposition leaders supported the $10 increase though they termed it inadequate.

A 'POLITICAL TRICK'

Paul Martin, former Liberal health minister, said the proposed $10 increase is a "political trick" to try to make Canadians forget the government's "ineptness and incompetence."

The member of Essex East talked glowingly of the Liberal's own proposal for a contributory plan, which they say would provide a $75 pension in the first year without increasing taxes.

Harold Winch (CCF—Vancouver East) expressed hope the $10 increase will not go to elderly people's landlords.

In the past, landlords seemed to have regarded pension increases as strictly for them, so the pensioner often failed to get any advantage.

Mr. Monteith said the increase will cost about $113,400,000 a year. Total pension payments in 1962-63 would amount to $737,000,000.

The health and welfare minister also stated that the government will continue to pay half the cost of any provincial payments to elderly citizens beyond the basic pension.

Mr. Monteith noted that the government was seeking consent of the provinces to a constitutional amendment covering payments to widows, dependent children and disabled persons under its proposed contributory scheme.

V.I. ROUNDUP

Booster Trio To Scrimmage In Lions' Den

COURTENAY—Three members of the North Vancouver Island Booster Club will meet with B.C. Lion executives in Vancouver Wednesday.

Harry Squires, Al Rae and Don Gordon will host a luncheon meeting with Lion officials for prenegotiation talks to determine any changes that may be required in training camp or practice field facilities.

Although Courtenay has asked the Lions to hold their training camp here, no definite decision can be made until current investigations of the club have been completed.

COURTENAY—Three Courtenay men held on manslaughter charges have been remanded until Feb. 15 for preliminary hearings.

Gary V. Parkinson, Keith C. Parkinson, both 18, and Peter L. M. Day, 24, are being held without bail in Burnaby on manslaughter charges arising out of the death of a 24-year-old miner on Jan. 27. Donald Butler died as the result of a fight in front of the New Moon Cafe. The men will be returned to Courtenay on Feb. 14 for preliminary hearings.

Day is now serving a four-month sentence for car theft.

CAMPBELL RIVER — BB guns and a plastic replica of a .45 revolver have been seized from a group of children ranging in age between eight and 12 years.

RCMP took the guns away from them after several windows were reported broken by BB pellets.

NANAIMO — Dr. Gordon Bell was elected chairman of the Nanaimo Committee on Radiation Hazards at a meeting Monday.

Rev. William van Druten was elected vice-chairman. The peace group will carry out a Nanaimo canvass for the Vancouver Peace Research Institute.

CHEMAINUS — John C. brought of Campbell River won the men's open free style at the Vancouver Island archery championship meet here Sunday.

Lil Jones, well-known Victoria archer, won the trophy for the ladies' open free style.

The MacKenzie Cup for men's instinctive shooting (no sights) went to Ian Sutherland, Duncan.

Mrs. Sutherland took the ladies' trophy in the same class.

DEEP-SEA SHIPS IN PORT

Victoria—Woodville, Pacific Unity, Tatakawa Maru, Royal Roads—Niobe, Esquimalt—Berkshire, Crofton—Carlton, Berganger, Chemainus—Otello, Stella Orion.

'Double Standard' Charged

OTTAWA (CP) — A noted French-Canadian scholar says national unity may face tragedy unless "drastic steps" are taken to overcome the problem of bilingualism.

Dr. Seraphin Marion attacks "the one-way bilingualism that still prevails in Canada."

He describes this as the situation in which French-speaking Canadians are forced to learn English, but few English-speaking Canadians learn French.

"National unity, or rather unity between the two nations—English-Canadian and French-Canadian—living side by side in this country, is encountering major obstacles," he says in a study prepared for the Canadian Conference on Education.

"And unless all concerned react vigorously, the situation may soon become difficult, perhaps tragic."

Dr. Marion, professor emeritus of the University of Ottawa, prepared the study on "Innovations in second-language teaching" for discussion at the education conference in Montreal next March 4-8.

The study, printed in English and French in a 96-page booklet, also charges that English Canada has "a double standard" in the teaching of second languages.

Dean to Address Teachers' Parley

Over 850 teachers from Greater Victoria will gather at Victoria High School on Friday and Saturday for a convention to deal primarily with the recommendations of the Chant commission.

Head of the commission Dean S. N. F. Chant of UBC will deliver the opening address on Friday morning.

For the first time the convention will use the panel and informal discussion technique instead of having a series of speakers. Members of the main panel featured on Saturday will be Dr. R. Monk of the faculty of education at Victoria College, H. G. McAllister of the B.C. Teachers' Federation, R. E. Lester of the B.C. School Trustees Association, and J. W. Nicol, education chairman of the Victoria Trades and Labor Council.

REEVE TO SPEAK

Reeve Stanley Murphy of Saanich, himself a high school teacher, will be the main speaker at Saturday's luncheon.

There will be a special elementary session on Friday afternoon at which Miss B. Sibbald of the Copp Clark Publishing Co. will speak on "Creative Writing." And on the Friday there will be a display of books and teaching aids, including a controlled reader, an overhead projector, and an electronic marker.

Gov't Share Cutback Says Murphy

The provincial government is paying less and less every year towards the operation of the Capital Region Planning Board, Reeve Stanley Murphy told a Saanich council meeting Monday.

He said the government over a period of years has gradually shifted the costs for operating the board onto the municipalities.

In 1956 when the board was first established, the reeve said the government paid about 90 per cent of the operational costs. Now it pays about 25 per cent.

The question of costs arose at the meeting when it was announced that Saanich's share this year towards operation of the board is $7,700.

'MEAN STRIP' BY NATALIE

NATALIE WOOD

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The sight of Natalie Wood doing a striptease is like seeing Helen Hayes do the twist.

The view is fascinating but you're not sure she should be doing what she's doing.

That was my reaction to watching Miss Wood prepare for her role as stripper Gypsy Rose Lee. The young actress is playing the title role in Gypsy.

Miss Wood does a good job, as always. Although she is perhaps the screen's most effective symbol of purity since Lillian Gish, she does a mean strip.

She was rehearsing the Let Me Entertain You number, a montage which shows her developing from a shy, hesitant peeper to the strutting, insinuating Gypsy.

She wore a skin-tight leotard.

"In the picture I'll end up in a bikini-like outfit," she explained. Hollywood's censors don't permit nudity.

Nor are bumps and grinds permitted on the screen. But that doesn't inhibit Natalie.

"From all I can gather, Gypsy Rose Lee didn't do the bump-and-grind kind of strip. Hers was a more tongue-in-cheek kind of routine. She would even recite nursery rhymes during her act."

Natalie did some research at a strip joint on Sunset Strip. She refuted my suggestion that she was small to portray a stripper.

"I admit I'm not a big girl," said the actress. "But when I saw some of the strippers walking out after the show I was surprised to see that most of them were smaller than I am."

Gypsy is the sage of how the mother of Gypsy Rose Lee and June Havoc pushed her daughters to stardom by any means within her grasp.

B.C. Coliseum Lobby Unheeded

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal help to build a coliseum benefiting Vancouver's status as Canada's third-largest city was advocated Monday in the Commons, but came to nothing.

British Columbia members had nothing but good to say of the proposal by John Taylor (PC—Vancouver Burrard). But Art Smith (PC—Calgary South) had reservations. He was still listing them when debating time expired for the privately-sponsored item.

It was a resolution asking the government to consider the advisability of a matching centennial grant of a sufficient amount for the construction of a coliseum with at least 14,000 seats in Vancouver to better serve B.C. as an international trade, convention, tourist and business centre.

Mr. Smith said he wouldn't want to tie the centennial planners' hands as the resolution, if approved by the Commons, might do. The debate itself would help those planning for Canada's 100th birthday in 1967.

Mr. Taylor said he had something in mind like Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto. A coliseum was, and had been, a source of great public interest in Vancouver.

West coast tourism was highly competitive with the U.S. and a coliseum for conventions was essential to keep the dollars rolling in. Nor could private enterprise handle such a project today as it might once have been expected to do.

Mr. Taylor said costs have been estimated at around $9,000,000, and he suggested the federal government provide $3,500,000. The city had offered land and conveniences worth $1,800,000.

Harold Winch (CCF—Vancouver East) said he was glad to offer his support. There had been a need for such a building for many years.

Douglas Jung (PC—Vancouver Centre) suggested a broader approach—an international centre something like Rockefeller Centre in New York. It could offer offices to trade consuls and he agreed with the suggestion of Mr. Taylor that perhaps the CBC could be quartered in the area.

Broadway Premiere For Yukon Festival

TORONTO (CP) — The world premiere of a Broadway-bound musical will be held in the Yukon in July as part of the Dawson City Gold Rush Festival, Tom Patterson, president of the Canadian Theatre Exchange, Limited, announced on Sunday. Mr. Patterson was one of the leading founders of Ontario's Stratford Festival.

The musical is an adaptation of Ben Jonson's book, "Volpone," set in the days of the Klondike gold rush. The play is being written by the Broadway team of Ring Lardner, Jr., and Ian McLellan Hunter. The musical score is to be done by Robert Emmet Dolan with lyrics of Johnny Mercer.

Robert Whitehead, Canadian-born artistic director of the Lincoln Centre for the Performing Arts in New York, and Stanley Gilkey will co-produce the work.

The musical will be staged in the Palace Grand Theatre which was built at the height of the gold rush and is being refurbished by the Canadian government's historic sites commission. The festival is scheduled from July 1 to August 17.

Mr. Howatson, spokesman for more than 30 Gordon Head residents, asked if it is the practice to withhold letters from council or committees.

The question remained unanswered, but Coun. Joseph Casey said he did not remember the letters being submitted to a public works committee meeting early in January.

SECOND LOOK

Mr. Howatson's claim resulted in council deciding to take another look at its sidewalk priority list for 1962.

Reeve Murphy reminded residents that sidewalks are needed in all parts of the municipality.

"We have allotted more money this year for sidewalks but we can't do them all," he said.

The priority list to be reconsidered by council include the following projects: Cedar Hill Road, from Cedar Hill Cross Road to Gregory; Ruby Road, from Shelbourne to Gordon Head; Tillamook from Burnside to Trans-Canada and Cabbro Bay Road from Sinclair to Maynard.

Charge of possession of stolen property against Derrick Stratford, 2520 Shakespear, was dismissed by Magistrate William Oster in city police court last week.

Prosecution alleged that Stratford, a gas station operator, obtained a gun, a watch and a calculator from two youths at present under sentence for burglary.

But the operator said he had accepted the watch and gun as security for gas the youths had purchased. He thought the calculator, which he found on the premises, had been left there by a salesman from a business machine firm.

Disaster Blamed On Crew, Airline

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Civil Aeronautics Board today blamed the deaths of 74 army recruits in the crash of a non-scheduled airliner at Richmond, Va., last November on a crew that lacked co-ordination, judgment and knowledge of the plane it was flying.

The report on the Nov. 8 accident involving an Imperial Airlines Constellation also was sharply critical of the company. The C.A.B. said Imperial's history was "studded with examples of 'substandard operation,' although it did not attribute the accident directly to any of them.

$1. MILLION APARTMENT OPPOSITE TOTEM PARK

A nine-storey apartment building is planned for Douglas Street opposite Thunderbird Park.

Chartered Investments Ltd. of Edmonton Monday asked city council to rezone the land for a $1,000,000 80-suite apartment. It lies between the Crystal Court Motel and an unfinished apartment building.

The 50 by 140-foot structure would overlook both Beacon Hill and Thunderbird Parks. Ground-level parking for 43 cars is included in the plans.

The firm announced plans for a similar apartment building on Michigan Street recently.

Fourth Child On Way?

LONDON (UPI) — Reports circulated in Palace circles today that Queen Elizabeth is expecting her fourth child.

There was no comment on the reports from Buckingham Palace itself.

If tradition is followed, the announcement of an expected birth would be made about five or six months before the anticipated birth date.

The announcement that Elizabeth was expecting her last child was made in August, 1959, and Prince Andrew was born in February, 1960. He will be two years, old Feb. 19.

The Queen's other children are Prince Charles, the heir apparent who is 13, and Princess Anne, who is 11. Both Elizabeth, 35, and Philip have been reported in the past to favor another child.

Gaglardi Defends McMahon Profits

Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi Monday defended oil magnate Frank McMahon in the legislature and said anyone who took the gambles he took on pipelines deserved "some reasonable amount of return."

Lawyer Alex Macdonald (NDP-CCF—Vancouver East) last week attacked the businessman, charging he made $11,250,000 for nothing by getting a government franchise to build a crude oil pipeline.

Mr. Gaglardi said it would be equally fair to accuse a lawyer of profiteering at taxpayers' expense.

He said it cost about $25,000 to educate a lawyer, plus about $5,000 the law student paid himself.

"According to statistics lawyers make approximately from $10,000 to $100,000 a year," said Mr. Gaglardi.

It has appealed to the food and drug directorate for some regulation to ban the window frame bacon package which conceals all but the lean edges of bacon.

ANSWER: NO

"Is this good enough for the long reign that seems likely to stretch before her? The candid answer must be no."

The Guardian says that much more significant than the Queen's remaining political rights is her power to influence social attitudes.

"The Queen has neglected this aspect of 20th century monarchy... at a time when qualities of innovation, originality and daring are needed to regenerate our society, the Royal Family ought to think of themselves as pacesetters."

MARGARET 'AT SEA' ON ISLAND

Is B.C. Afraid to Ask?

LONDON (CP) — Officials appeared baffled today at reports from British Columbia that the provincial government is awaiting permission from Princess Margaret before developing a marine park on an island given to her in 1958.

Although a spokesman for the princess and officials at British Columbia House declined detailed comment, they gave the impression that they believe Princess Margaret was unaware that any further action was necessary on her part. The 545-acre Portland Island was presented to the princess when she visited Victoria and renamed Princess Margaret Island. At the time, officials here, said, the princess expressed the hope the island would be developed for the public.

It was understood that Margaret had no intention of doing any work on the project but that she probably would make no move until she receives some official communication from the B.C. government outlining exactly what it wants to do with the property.

The spokesman said that, as far as he knew, the princess has received no request from the provincial government.

"The island is not used for anything at present," he said. "I know of no plans for it at the moment."

Officials at B.C. House said they were not directly involved in the matter.

Recreation Minister Earle Westwood said today he could not make any comment about the fate of Princess Margaret (nee Portland) Island. However, he denied a London report that he had asked for the return of the island. It was also learned that there are no specific parks branch plans for development of a provincial marina on Princess Margaret Island.

MAYOR TOSSES CHALLENGE AT REEVES

Whole Area Vote Asked on Merger

ALGERIA

Paper Pirated By Rebels

ORAN, Algeria (AP) — The European secret army answered President de Gaulle's promise of an Algerian peace agreement with the daring seizure today of an Oran newspaper.

The secret army commandos blanketed the city with a pirate edition asserting the French settlers will win their battle to block Algerian independence.

The latest daring coup by former General Raoul Salan's Secret Army Organization occurred at 2 a.m., only a few hours after the right-wing settlers' underground had forced President de Gaulle off the television screens of Algeria's second largest city by kidnapping seven radio technicians and making a pirate broadcast as the president spoke.

The printers of the Echo d'Oran were about to start the night's run when a group of about 20 armed men, their faces covered with scarves, hurried into the building.

Herding aside workers in the composing room, the raiders quickly recast the paper's back page, which is usually devoted to North African news. They inserted type and a big picture of Salan which they had brought with them.

Under the guns of the raiders, about 20,000 copies of the new edition were run off.

Beginning at 7 a.m., runners went through the streets of the city, handing out the papers to early workers who eagerly snatched them.

It was probably the most daring propaganda coup Salan has yet pulled.

RE-ELECTED

Finnish general election which ended Monday returned President Urho Kekkonen to power at the head of the Agrarian Party which replaced the Communists as the country's largest party. Prospects are that Kekkonen will form a coalition government, excluding reds, with a working majority in the 200-seat Finnish house. (See story page 5.)

Dutch Ready To Discuss New Guinea

THE HAGUE (Reuters) — A Dutch foreign office spokesman said here today that a meeting between Dutch and Indonesian diplomats in Cologne, West Germany, on the West New Guinea question was "not excluded."

The spokesman was commenting on reports that Adam Malik, the Indonesian ambassador in Moscow, has arrived in Cologne and is prepared to meet a Dutch representative for talks on Dutch-held West New Guinea, which Indonesia claims as West Irian.

The Dutch spokesman said The Netherlands is "not seeking bilateral talks with Indonesia on our own initiative but we would be willing to treat with sympathy any Indonesian approach."

Decision Wanted By Voters

Mayor R. B. Wilson today challenged Greater Victoria municipal councils to let their ratepayers vote on whether or not there should be a formal amalgamation study.

Early indications were that Victoria and Saanich councils may take up the challenge while Oak Bay and Esquimalt may not.

The mayor suggested the vote on the heels of a 4 to 3 Saanich council decision lining itself up with Oak Bay and Esquimalt in refusing to participate in a formal study.

Reeve Stanley Murphy said that a referendum to settle the issue of whether or not there should be a formal study "certainly should be considered" by his council.

NO FORMAL STUDY

But Oak Bay Reeve George Murdoch said his council and Esquimalt already have taken the stand there should be no formal study. He pointed out the two councils were willing to hold a vote after an informal study by intermunicipal committee.

Meanwhile, Saanich Council Hugh Curtis said the December election results showed that the council refusal did not reflect the wishes of Saanich ratepayers.

Several aldermen agreed with holding a referendum after Mayor Wilson's challenge to all councillors to put their private views to a test at the ballot box to see what the people want.

HONEST DOUBTS

He said so many persons living in the outside municipalities had contacted him to support his proposal of a study that he had some honest doubts the positions taken by councils really reflected the feelings of their ratepayers.

"If the decision of Saanich council is the wish of the people, I recognize and accept as fact that the time is not yet ripe for amalgamation," he said.

"However, I've had so many people from the outside municipalities tell me of their desires that a study be made, that I seriously wonder whether the councils of the adjoining municipalities are actually voicing the wishes of their ratepayers."

ASK VOTERS

"The only way to find out would be for each municipality to ask its voters whether they wanted to have a study or not," he said.

Although Mayor Wilson did not indicate what his next step would be, he may formally suggest to intermunicipal committee that the four municipalities hold referendums on launching a study to clear the air once and for all.

Reeve Murdoch said all questions could be studied informally at intermunicipal level. He said a government sponsored formal study would inevitably lead to the municipalities "being pushed into a disastrous position."

He said this had always occurred in previous government studies on municipal mergers. Council Curtis who led the polls, said a majority of his colleagues were ignoring the wishes of Saanich people.

"Reeve Stanley Murphy's

Election Call Soon?

(Times Ottawa Bureau) OTTAWA — Canadians may go to the polls in a general election in late April or early May.

Parliament appears to be teetering on the brink of dissolution; it may come to an end within the next two weeks.

Decision of the federal government to make the $10 increase in universal old-age pensions effective this month, with the first $65 cheques to go out in the mail by the end of the month, has added impetus to election conjecture here. (See story page 20.)

Members on both sides of the House are now convinced that the days of the 24th Parliament are numbered by days rather than weeks. The present session is only 18 days old. It could be ended abruptly within the next two weeks.

However should the present session survive the next two or three weeks, then the odds are that it will continue sitting for another two months until the Easter recess with Prime Minister Diefenbaker announcing dissolution during that recess.

Deny Attempt To Kill Nikita

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet foreign office press spokesman today branded as a "provocative rumor without any foundation at all" a story current in Moscow that an attempt had been made to assassinate Premier Khrushchev.

"It is an invention and completely false," the spokesman added.

The rumors had been investigated by correspondents and diplomats for the last several days and no one could find any substance to them.

Merger Out

LONDON (AP) — Colonial Secretary Reginald Maudling told the House of Commons tonight that Britain has decided to break up the evolving West Indies Federation.

Maudling's announcement resulted from his visit to the Caribbean last month. He had talks with the West Indies federal government, the premiers of Barbados, Trinidad and the chief ministers of the Leeward and Windward Islands.

Jamaica has declared its determination to withdraw from the federation.

Women who were girls in 1938 bravely mounted the platform at the centennial banquet of First United Church Monday night and recreated a Scottish concert they gave 24 years ago.

Led by Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson, a pioneer member, they sang Ye Banks and Braes, O Can Ye Sew Cushions? and the famous Border Ballad.

"Any resemblance between us and any other First United Church choir is purely coincidental," said Ald. Wilson.

Things are not always what they seem.
Victoria organist Jack Lanigan played at a wedding last week and was not unduly surprised when the best man approached him and laid an envelope on the organ.

Jack assumed this was his fee for the afternoon and took it home. But, alas, there was no cheque inside. The envelope contained the bride's marriage licence!

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Two men were given prison terms by Magistrate William Ostler in city police court today for breaking into the cafeteria of the Douglas Building last month.

Arthur William Green, no fixed address, was sentenced to 14 months, and James Gilbert Erickson, 2617 Graham, received an eight-month term.

Erickson admitted to the magistrate that his problem was drink.

"But you don't seem to have done anything about it," the magistrate replied.

Magistrate Ostler told Green that his attempts over the past four years to lead a useful life had saved him from the penitentiary.

Saanich council Monday approved a request from the Canadian Peace Research Institute Development Fund for permission to hold a residential canvass from Feb. 1 to 28.

Dean of the faculty of agriculture at the University of Manitoba, J. R. Weir, will be the speaker at a meeting of the Victoria and Islands branch of the Agricultural Institute of Canada to be held in the Dominion Hotel on Monday at 8 p.m.

Dean Weir is national president of the Institute.

A recorded music program will be held in the Victoria Public Library music room on Thursday at 3 p.m.

Works to be heard include Bach's Brandenburg Concerto No. 6 and Beethoven's First Symphony.

The Oak Bay Playground Association will hold its annual meeting at the municipal hall Wednesday, starting at 8 p.m. Extension of the playground program to include children between the ages of 12 and 15 years, will be discussed.

The American Society for Metals, Victoria branch, will meet Tuesday, Feb. 13, at the Dockyard Officers Club to hear Dr. Earl Haynes, U.S. Bureau of Mines, speak on "Recent Developments in Beryllium Metallurgy."

The Victoria Camera Club will meet Wednesday, Feb. 28, not this Wednesday as reported Monday, at the St. John Ambulance Hall.

Tax exemption for the Salvation Army's Matson Lodge and surrounding property was granted by Esquimalt council Monday night.

The exemption was granted in lieu of a municipal grant.

The RCN Pacific Command frigate HMCS Beacon Hill will carry out surface and anti-aircraft firing practice in the Rock's Trial Island area from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Monday, Feb. 12.

St. Alban's 50-Up Club will meet Thursday in the Parish Hall, 1468 Ryan Street, at 2:15 p.m.

SPEAKERS IN THE HOUSE

Speakers in the legislature at today's 8 p.m. sitting:

Herbert Bruch (SC - Esquimalt); Rae Eddie (NDP-CCF - New Westminster); Don Robinson (SC-Lillooet).

The schedule for Wednesday at the 2 p.m. sitting is:

Frank Calder (NDP-CCF-Atlin); William Murray (SC-Prince Rupert); Randolph Harding (NDP-CCF-Kaslo-Slocan); Alan Macfarlane (L-Oak Bay).

There will be no night sitting Wednesday.

RESTRICTING BYLAW ORDERED CHANGED

Boy and His Pigeons Melt Council

Oak Bay council has been accused of many things in over 55 years but never being hard of heart.

A boy and his pigeons bore this out Monday evening.

A year ago 15-year-old Ricky Cockburn, 1051 Hampshire, joined the newly-formed junior branch of the Victoria Pigeon Fanciers' Club.

He built a loft at his home measuring five by six feet at ground level, the maximum allowable under the municipal bylaw.

Into this loft he introduced, one by one, 15 pigeons, carefully selected for blood lines designed to make them top-flight racers.

With 23 other members of the junior branch, his intention was to breed birds selectively and compete in club competitions.

TOO SMALL
However, the small space proved inadequate to segregate the birds properly to breed, along desired blood lines.

Then a complaint was made to the municipality alleging that the pigeons attracted rats to the area.

An inspector discovered no rats but additions to the loft that had brought it beyond the maximum limits.

Ricky's father, A. R. Cockburn, wrote to the council explaining developments and appeared, with his son, at a council meeting Monday.

MOST IN FAVOR

He brought with him a petition which had been circulated throughout the neighborhood asking for an expression of feeling from residents and which was almost completely in favor of the birds.

"It has been pointed out to me," he said, addressing the council, "that my son Ricky was erecting an aviary for his pigeons larger than that permitted by the existing bylaws of the Corporation. For his transgressions I sincerely apologize.

"However, I would like to beg your indulgence in my request that he be permitted to build a bird loft in excess of the area as defined by your existing bylaw.

OFF THE STREETS

"My son and his friends are, in lieu of roaming the streets, raising as a hobby, and I might say quite an expensive hobby, prize racing pigeons."

Council members were evidently sympathetic, if jocular.

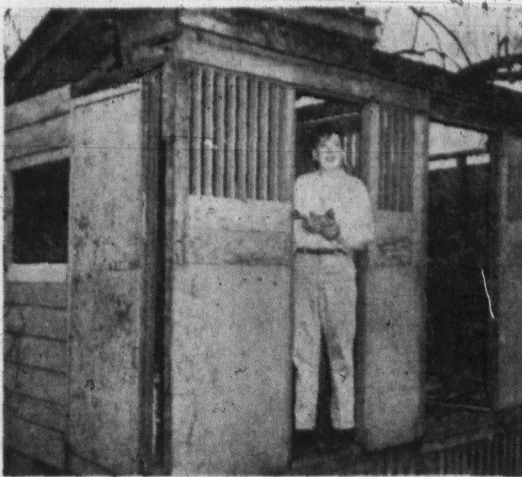

"Seagulls get along all right," said Coun. Fred Robinson with a grin.

"Why don't you stand it (the left) on end when the inspector comes round," said Coun. Allan Cox.

SPECIAL CHANGE

"I suppose we will have to make a special change in the bylaw for pigeons," continued Coun. Robinson.

Coun. Cox then moved that the matter be referred to the lands and buildings committee for an amendment to the bylaw permitting "this and such other changes as it sees fit."

Peace Centre 'Manned' By Women

An information centre for the Canadian Peace Research Institute was opened today at 821 Fort Street.

The centre will be staffed from 9 to 5, Monday through Friday, by women volunteers while a fund-raising campaign is being conducted in Greater Victoria.

Telephone inquiries can be made by calling EV 6-5222.

The Peace Research Institute is a non-profit organization which, under federal charter, will put science to work seeking an end to the threat of nuclear war. It was discussed in detail last Friday night at a public meeting at S. J. Willis School, by its founder, distinguished Canadian physicist, and electronics engineer, Dr. Norman Alcock.

$4,000,000 FUND

With an international peace research fund, the institute will share $4,000,000 it is hoped to raise by public contribution and matching government grant. The money will be used to set up research procedures and employ scientists full time on the program.

Quota for Greater Victoria is $30,000. Recent canvass is now well under way and collections are being made in Victoria city. Local treasurer is Cmdr. B. W. Fairweather, 5050 Lockhaven Drive, but donations may be made at 821 Fort Street.

Yacht Given Top Seal Of Approval

A Victoria shipyard is the first in North America to build a fibreglass boat under Lloyd's Register of Approval for yachts.

The approval of Lloyd's is prized because it gives an improved insurance picture, better resale value and peace of mind for the owner.

Now being molded at the Songhees Road yard of Pelagic Construction and Design Ltd. are a 40-foot, ketch-rigged yacht, and a 30-foot power boat hull.

Lloyd's approval was sought especially for construction of the yacht, and was granted after the company's representative made an extensive study of the firm and its personnel. Final application was approved in London about two weeks ago.

A native of B.C. and a newcomer are associated in the shipyard, which recently took up space in the former Sidney Roofing Co. plant.

Capt. Dana Ramsay, Vancouver-born and an RCN veteran, moved to Vancouver Island in 1958. With him in the fibreglass operation is Ray Richardson of Seattle, who has worked with naval architect Philip Spalding and the experimental design division of Boeing Aircraft.

Charming Inn May Yield To High-Rise

Oak Bay's rapidly growing waterfront skyline seemed likely to acquire another two high-rise apartment buildings following a council meeting Monday.

An amendment to the bylaw permitting building to eight storeys on the site of the Old Charming Inn at Windsor and Beach Drive was given first reading and a public hearing scheduled prior to the next council meeting.

At a public hearing before the meeting 12 residents of Beresford Street protested passage of a similar amendment permitting erection of an apartment building in that area.

They protested on the grounds that such an apartment building would block a fine view and cause their properties to depreciate in value.

There have been reports a high-rise apartment may be built on the Old Charming Inn site which would necessitate tearing down the 55-year-old structure.

Both proposals are the result of a study by a council rezoning committee during the past year.

Under the present bylaw buildings may not exceed three storeys but the amendment would provide for structures not less than four storeys and not more than eight.

NEXT WORD FROM OTTAWA ON SHELLING

Results of a three-man naval board of inquiry into the accidental firing of shells from the Canadian destroyer-escort Skeena into Clallam Bay, Wash., last week have been sent to naval headquarters in Ottawa.

"Whatever will be announced, will be announced from Ottawa," a naval spokesman said.

GOVERNMENT EASES WAY FOR MARINA

The provincial government has granted Oak Bay council a one-year licence to hold 2.5 acres of waterfront until it completes negotiations with a private group which plans to build a marina there.

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston said the year's licence, to run until next Aug. 24, will give the municipality time to complete negotiations with the marina planners.

He gave assurance that when these negotiations are completed, the government will allow as long a lease on the property as the marina operators seek.

BRUCE WILLIAMS ... no hard feelings

He's Got Ideas; Who's Listening?

An experienced Canadian show producer today showed he had no hard feelings toward the city's centennial committee.

Bruce Williams, now Canadian representative for the Seattle World's Fair, offered several suggestions for adding color to this year's celebrations without much cost.

Mr. Williams, a highly-qualified co-ordinator and promoter, offered his services to the centennial committee here last year. His qualifications include 17 years in the RCAF as a public relations officer, who helped arrange various royal visits and military shows, including two performances over Victoria by the Golden Hawks.

He also co-ordinated the highly-praised military tattoo that was the highlight of last year's Vancouver International Festival.

NO REPLY
"I wrote a letter to Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow (centennial committee chairman) offering my services and outlining a few ideas.

"But I never got a reply."

"However, I'm happy to offer them free."

Mr. Williams suggested that for little cost the military cadet corps could produce a tattoo that would bring cheers from all spectators.

"It wouldn't cost much money, just some organization. And I know it can be done because it was done last year by Powell River."

EASTER PARADE
"I also think that the city could arrange a bang-up Easter parade. They could get the co-operation of the department stores and fashion stores and really have a nice show."

Mr. Williams favorite idea would also help high school or college students.

"Various companies in town should be encouraged to add some color for tourists and residents by reviving the street criers of old London idea."

"This could be done by hiring some youngsters during summer vacation and dressing them up in costume to meet the tourist ferries hawking local items as did the street criers of old."

"A girl could be hired by Butchart's Gardens or some

Professional Aid Will Cost $1,000

A professional evaluation of Victoria's centennial program was ordered today after a meeting in City Hall.

Mayor R. B. Wilson said the John B. Rogers Co. has been hired to do the 10-day study and report back to the centennial committee with its recommendations.

"This company is an international firm with offices in London, Ont., and they come highly recommended," he said.

"They will do a survey of the program already planned and the possibilities of adding to it."

PAGEANT
The company also will submit an outline of how it would produce a historical pageant for the celebrations if it is given the commission.

Cost of the study, to be borne by the centennial committee, will be $1,000.

"The company's representative feels that basically the events in our centennial calendar are commendable but that there are possibilities of enhancing and enlarging it," Mayor Wilson said.

The company specializes in producing civic and other pageants and planning celebrations such as civic centennials. It has been operating in this field for 59 years.

Hiring of professional consultants to help straighten out the controversy-ridden centennial planning was first advocated by Ald. Michael Griffin despite opposition from centennial committee chairman Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow.

Prosecutor's 'Bad Practice' Criticized

Magistrate William Ostler criticized the Crown in city police court today for laying a second charge against a youth who was already awaiting sentence for an offence committed at the same time.

Thor John Foss, 221 Menzies, an 18-year-old father of two, was to appear in court today for sentence on a charge of impaired driving Jan. 28. He pleaded guilty at an earlier hearing but Magistrate Ostler asked for a probation report.

When Foss appeared today, he was further charged with failing to remain at the scene of an accident Jan. 28.

'BAD PRACTICE'
"This must come as much as a surprise to you as it does to me," the magistrate told Foss.

"It is inexplicable that the Crown should lay a charge when sentence is to be passed. It is very bad practice," he said.

The facts in the second charge were known to the prosecution at the time the first charge was laid. And these were referred to in the probation report.

'MIX-UP'
"There was a mix-up," prosecutor Angus Smith said.

Foss admitted the second charge.

Magistrate Ostler handed Foss a suspended sentence under bond of $250 and suspended his licence on the impaired driving charge and fined him $50 for failing to remain.

"It's very heartening to see a young man manfully trying to meet his responsibilities," the magistrate said after reading the probation report.

At the same time he warned the 18-year-old about drinking. "You can get into sufficient trouble when you start drinking at the legal age," Magistrate Ostler said.

Australia to Cut Income, Sales Taxes

CANBERRA (Reuters)—Prime Minister Robert Menzies announced tonight plans to cut income tax and sales tax on cars and increase unemployment benefits to stimulate the Australian economy.

He also said the government will re-impose some import restrictions if necessary to protect particular industries and increase loans to ex-servicemen and promote bank lending to stimulate housing.

Gaglardi Defends
McMahon Profits

Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi Monday defended oil magnate Frank McMahon in the legislature and said anyone who took the gambles he took on pipelines deserved "some reasonable amount of return."

Lawyer Alex Macdonald (NDP-CCF—Vancouver East) last week attacked the businessman, charging he made $11,250,000 for nothing by getting a government franchise to build a crude oil pipeline.

Mr. Gaglardi said it would be equally fair to accuse a lawyer of profiting at taxpayers' expense.

He said it cost about $25,000 to educate a lawyer, plus about $5,000 the law student paid himself.

"According to statistics lawyers make approximately from $10,000 to $100,000 a year," said Mr. Gaglardi.

Merger Out

LONDON (AP)—Colonial Secretary Reginald Maudling told the House of Commons tonight that Britain has decided to break up the evolving West Indies Federation.

Maudling's announcement resulted from his visit to the Caribbean last month. He had talks with the West Indies federal government, the premiers of Barbados, Trinidad and the chief ministers of the Leeward and Windward Islands.

Jamaica has declared its determination to withdraw from the federation.

Laugh if it turned out everybody wuz for amalgamation 'cept them councillors.

Mebbe we ought jist 't celebrate ten-year anniversaries till we git th' hang of it.

Th' so-called "old guard" on Saanich council may wake up some day 't find whut they're guardin' ain't there any more.

Wants Decision
At Ballot Boxes

Mayor R. B. Wilson today challenged Greater Victoria municipal councils to let their ratepayers vote on whether or not there should be a formal amalgamation study.

Early indications were that Victoria and Saanich councils may take up the challenge while Oak Bay and Esquimalt may not.

The mayor suggested the vote on the heels of a 4 to 3 Saanich council decision lining itself up with Oak Bay and Esquimalt in refusing to participate in a formal study.

Reeve Stanley Murphy said that a referendum to settle the issue of whether or not there should be a formal study "certainly should be considered" by his council.

NO FORMAL STUDY

But Oak Bay Reeve George Murdoch said his council and Esquimalt already have taken the stand there should be no formal study. He pointed out the two councils were willing to hold a vote after an informal study by intermunicipal committee.

Meanwhile, Saanich Coun. Hugh Curtis said the December election results showed that the council refusal did not reflect the wishes of Saanich ratepayers.

Several aldermen agreed with holding a referendum after Mayor Wilson's challenge to all councillors to put their private views to a test at the ballot box to see what the people want.

HONEST DOUBTS
He said so many persons living in the outside municipalities had contacted him to support his proposal of a study that he had some honest doubts the positions taken by councils really reflected the feelings of their ratepayers.

"If the decision of Saanich council is the wish of the people, I recognize and accept as fact that the time is not yet ripe for amalgamation," he said.

"However, I've had so many people from the outside municipalities tell me of their desires that a study be made, that I seriously wonder whether the councils of the adjoining municipalities are actually voicing the wishes of their ratepayers.

ASK VOTERS
"The only way to find out would be for each municipality to ask its voters whether they wanted to have a study or not," he said.

Although Mayor Wilson did not indicate what his next step would be, he may formally suggest to intermunicipal committee that the four municipalities hold referendums on launching a study to clear the air once and for all.

Reeve Murdoch said all questions could be studied informally at intermunicipal level. He said a government-sponsored formal study would inevitably lead to the municipalities "being pushed into a disastrous position."

He said this had always occurred in previous government studies on municipal mergers.

Coun. Curtis who led the polls, said a majority of his colleagues were ignoring the wishes of Saanich people.

$267,000

LONDON (AP)—Harry Boggest, 54-year-old maintenance man, learned today he has won $267,111 because of his wife's nagging.

Boggest hit the jackpot on a one-penny bet in the soccer pools.

He didn't want to mail his coupon last week because postal workers were on a slow-down strike and he feared it might not get delivered in time. But his wife, Kathleen kept nagging.

"Go on, send it," she insisted. "Never mind the strike. If you won't fill it in, I will."

So she did, and he mailed the coupon.

Today Mrs. Boggest heard their ship had come in and commented:

"Oh, Mate. That's a hell of a lot of money."

The Boggests picked eight soccer games to end in ties. Their handicapping was fantastic. There were only eight ties in the entire English soccer league program and they picked them all.

Election
Call Soon?

(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — Canadians may go to the polls in a general election in late April or early May.

Parliament appears to be teetering on the brink of dissolution; it may come to an end within the next two weeks.

Decision of the federal government to make the $10 increase in universal old-age pensions effective this month, with the first $65 cheques to go out in the mail by the end of the month, has added impetus to election conjecture here. (See story page 20.)

Members on both sides of the House are now convinced that the days of the 24th Parliament are numbered by days rather than weeks. The present session is only 18 days old. It could be ended abruptly within the next two weeks.

However should the present session survive the next two or three weeks, then the odds are that it will continue sitting for another two months until the Easter recess with Prime Minister Diefenbaker announcing dissolution during that recess.

'This Was Their Finest Hour'

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Rev. Dr. W. G. Wilson, minister at First United Church from 1921 to 1938 and now in his 94th year, imitated the voice of Sir Winston Churchill Monday night when he said:

"If this congregation should live for a thousand years, historians will say 'This was their finest hour.'"

The occasion was the centennial banquet of First United Church—founded as the First Presbyterian Church of Vancouver Island on Feb. 3, 1862—and Dr. Wilson with many other former ministers returned to pay homage to an institution closely identified with the history of Victoria.

"We look back with pride on our history," said Dr. Wilson, "but we look forward to an even greater future."

More than 500 church members, gathered in the spacious Fellowship Hall, rose and cheered the veteran minister at the close of his brief address.

There were cheers, too, for Dr. Wilson's successor, Rt. Rev. Dr. Hugh A. McLeod (1938-1948), who is now moderator of the United Church of Canada.

Dr. McLeod referred to many of the pioneers who had given "life and stability" to First United, and recalled many happy memories of his ministry in Victoria.

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston brought greetings from the B.C. government and said his long association with the church began in February, 1914, when he was christened there by Rev. Dr. John Gibson Inkster (1913-1921).

DR. WILSON

"Even in those far off days," he said, "Victorians had a concern for Saanich. They thought they were a bunch of heathens, out there, so they organized a Sunday school in the Gorge which became Gorge Presbyterian Church."

Mr. Williston added that the successive generations of men and women who had served First United "have been a considerable force in the life and development of this community."

Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson, on behalf of the mayor and city council of Victoria, said: "We remember the strong Christian influence this church has had on the people of Victoria and we thank you for all the good deeds that have been done by members of this congregation."

Lawrence J. Wallace, chairman of the church's centennial committee, felt the church had been "supremely blessed" in the number of fine ministers who had served it.

Rev. Alexander Calder, minister of Oak Bay United Church and chairman of the Victoria Presbytery, said the presbytery "sets certain limits upon you but helps you when you are in need... I hope you will never need us."

Dr. Murray Anderson, chairman and organizer of the centennial banquet, introduced a number of pioneers, including Miss Helen Fraser, whose father, Rev. Donald Fraser, was minister of the church from 1884 to 1891.

Politicos Pitch Plea For Pensioners' Vote

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's 930,000 old age pensioners were wooed with jealous ardor in the Commons Monday.

The courting session took place as the government introduced a resolution calling for a $10 monthly increase to $65 in the basic old age pension.

Members of all three parties—mindful no doubt that an election is coming—had nice things to say for and about the country's senior citizens, all of whom have the vote.

Another 100,000 elderly people also came in for some wooing. This is the group between ages 65 and 69 who have to pass a means test to get the pension, which in their case is called old-age assistance.

A resolution was introduced to raise these payments to $65 from $55 also. Half the $14,400,000 increase would be borne by the participating provinces.

CALLS FOR INCREASE

The resolution calling for an increase in the basic old age pension—paid to everyone at 70—was approved unanimously just before the House rose Monday night. First reading was then given the legislation, which makes the increase retroactive to Feb. 1 this year. Debate was to continue today on second reading approval in principle.

The higher pension would start going out to elderly Canadians this month.

The old-age assistance resolution did not come to a vote and will be debated further.

Health and Welfare Minister Monteleith said: "Our future aim is to have an integrated program of old-age income security which, in addition to the universal flat-rate benefit, will provide a graduated benefit for all those who can reasonably afford further provision for their old age and who have not already undertaken it under private pension plans or other contractual agreements."

Under such a contributory scheme benefits would be paid starting at 65, but it would be possible to obtain an actuarially-reduced pension at age 62. The minimum benefit would be "over and above" the non-contributory pension now in the process of being raised to $65.

Opposition leaders supported the $10 increase though they termed it inadequate.

A 'POLITICAL TRICK'

Paul Martin, former Liberal health minister, said the proposed $10 increase is a "political trick" to try to make Canadians forget the government's "ineptness and incompetence."

The member of Essex East talked glowingly of the Liberal's own proposal for a contributory plan, which they say would provide a $75 pension in the first year without increasing taxes.

Harold Winch (CCF—Vancouver East) expressed hope the $10 increase will not go to elderly people's landlords.

In the past, landlords seemed to have regarded pension increases as strictly for them.

'Double Standard' Charged

OTTAWA (CP) — A noted French-Canadian scholar says national unity may face tragedy unless "drastic steps" are taken to overcome the problem of bilingualism.

Dr. Seraphin Marion attacks "the one-way bilingualism that still prevails in Canada."

He describes this as the situation in which French-speaking Canadians are forced to learn English, but few English-speaking Canadians learn French.

"National unity, or rather unity between the two nations—English-Canadian and French-Canadian—living side by side in this country, is encountering major obstacles," he says in a study prepared for the Canadian Conference on Education.

"And unless all concerned react vigorously, the situation may soon become difficult, perhaps tragic."

Dr. Marion, professor emeritus of the University of Ottawa, prepared the study on "innovations in second-language teaching" for discussion at the education conference in Montreal next March 4-8.

The study, printed in English and French in a 96-page booklet, also charges that English Canada has "a double standard" in the teaching of second languages.

Old Style WATER

It, too, has distinction!

The clear, sparkling water of British Columbia is a brewing ingredient unequalled in Canada. Our original recipe calls distinctly for this pure mountain water. Blended in our brewing kettle with hops and barley, its goodness comes to life. Then, finally, in our ageing cellars the brew slowly matures into the brilliant golden colour and the supreme flavour that is Old Style. Fortunately, this traditional manner of brewing does not go unnoticed—as evidenced by the many people who prefer Old Style.
